SHEPPARD, HEDLUND, TABER AND KIVIAT ARE VICTORS IN OLYMPICS

STOCKHOLM, July 9.—This was another day of triumph for the Star Spangled Banner at the Olympic games. Once more the American rooters burst forth in frenzy, when seven out of fourteen representatives of the United States qualified for the final heat in the 1,500-metre race. That the Yankees would make a clean sweep tomorrow was the prediction.

The successful Americans were Abel Kiviat, Lewis Madera, Melvin Sheppard, Norman S. Taber, John Paul Jones, Oscar Hedlund and Walter McClure.

Kiviat was the only one forced to extend himself, and his time was only a second behind the record. The other Americans took things easy to save themselves for the final.

NEW RECORD EXPECTED.

John Paul Jones finished second in his heat, but is in splendid condition. It is expected that a new record will be set.

Tel S. Berna of Cornell qualified in the 5,000 metre semi-finals.

Wallace M. McCurdy of the University of Pennsylvania overran himself in this heat and fainted. Het was carried to the field hospital and revived.

The American athletes continued their triumphant progress when today's session began. The weather for the fourth day was ideal, the heat being tempered by cloudiness.

The trial heats in the 5,000-metre run were run off first, and the American contingent in the Stadium roared with delight when George Bonhag and Louis Scott, both Americans, romped home easy winners in the first and second heats respectively.

Results in the 1500.

The Americans kept up their victorious work when the trial heats of the 1,500 metres race began. The result of the trials in the 1,500 metres:

First heat—First, Lewis Madera, University of Pennsylvania; second, Mel Sheppard, Irish-American A. C. Time—4 minutes 27 3-5 seconds.

Second heat—First, Norman S. Taber, Brown University; second, Baker, England. Time—4 minutes 25 5-10 seconds.

Third heat—First, Abel Kiviat, Irish-American A. C.; second, Arnaud, France. Time—4 minutes 42-5 seconds.

Tait of Canada and N. J. Paterson of Chicago A. A. were eliminated.

Fourth heat—First, Jackson, Great Britain; second, John Paul Jones, Cornell University. Time, 4 min. 21 7-10 sec.

Anderson of the University of Nebraska was eliminated. Jones made no effort to win, but took things easy in order to save himself for the finals tomorrow.

Fifth heat—First, Zander, Sweden; second, Bjurs, Sweden. Time—4m. 5-10s.

Herbert N. Putnam of Cornell University was eliminated.

Sixth heat—First, Von Siegel, Germany; second, Oscar Hedlund, Boston A. A. Time —4m. 1-10s.

Seventh heat—First, Wide, Sweden; second, Walter McClure of Olympic Club, San Francisco. Time—4m. 6s.

PLEA BY GLOVER WIDOW

Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow of Clarence F. Glover, who was murdered in his Waltham laundry, appeared before Judge Braley in the Supreme Court today wearing clothing she said cost less than $5, and asked that part of the Glover estate, which has been tied up since the tragedy, begiven to her for her subsistence.

Those who saw Mrs. Glover at the time of the trial of Hattie Le Blanc, her former maid, for the murder of Glover, would not have recognized her today. She took the witness stand and told a story of reduced circumstances that astonished those who heard her.

"Tell the court how you live now in comparison with your former life when your husband was living," directed her counsel, Councilman John A. Coultherst.

"This dress I have on," said the woman, pointing to her pink lawn, "I borrowed to wear to Boston. See these shoes—I paid $1 for them.

"This hat I have on my head cost $1.15. I have $1 in my pocket. I used to have an automobile, a horse and carriage, dogs, a maid, a man of all work nd sometimes a chauffeur.

I used to travel. I went to the Thousand Islands. I went to Maine and Nova Scotia. I went to the theater sometimes two and three times a week. I ate good dinners. I had all of everything I wanted.

"Now I'm living in a kitchen. Last Winter at times I had no coal. I have no help. I do my own cooking and laundry. Sometimes I do not have enough to eat. I have property, but get nothing from it.

"I want some of the property left me in my husband's will. It was my money that bought the property."

The estate left by Glover was estimated to be worth about $50,000. Three-fourths of the property was willed to his widow and the other fourth to one of Glover's four brothers. The other three brothers contested the will and lost.

Samuel Elmore, administrator of the estate, has had charge of the property, including the laundry, since the tragedy, three years ago this Fall. Elmore was in court, an interested listener. Mrs. Glover was not through when court took a recess for luncheon.

BOYS FIND MAN'S BODY FLOATING IN COMMON FROG POND

The body of an unidentified man was found floating in the Frog Pond in Boston Common today. It is believed by the police that the body had been there about a week.

Boys playing about the pond saw the figure of the man. They called Sergeant Harry of the Lagrange street station. He managed to pull it out of the water. The man was about forty-five years of age and poorly clad. There was nothing in the pockets to indicate identity. The body was taken to the City Hospital morgue. Assistant Medical Examiner Watters was called to the morgue to investigate the case.

MORE BANKS AS U. S. DEPOSITORIES

Judge Dodge of the United States District Court has designated the First National, Second National and the National Shawmut Bank as depositories, with the Merchants' National Bank, for money of bankrupt estates. The Merchants' National has been sole depository since the present bankruptcy act was adopted.

SIMPSON QUITS DAKOTA DAN IN RUSSELL CASE

"Dakota Dan" Russell today received a set back financially in his attempt to secure his half share of the fortune left by the late Daniel Russell of Melrose when Senator Leslie Simpson of North Dakota wired the claimant today that he (Simpson) could not finance the second trial of the famous case. Judge Braley of the Supreme Court also ruled against "Dakota Dan" today, refusing his petition to delay the second trial, and ordered it to begin at once. Where the money is coming for a second trial, now that Senator Simpson refuses to back "Dakota Dana," is not known.

In ruling on the issue, Judge Braley said that if it appeared that the petitioner, "Dakota Dan," had been deprived of counsel by some misunderstanding or unavoidable delay, he might be entitled to the continuance asked, but that no such evidence had been submitted.

At the Supreme Court hearing a telegram which "Dakota Dan" received from his senior attorney, Senator Leslie A. Simpson, was read. It bore the date of Dickinson, N. D., July 5, and said:

"Out of question for me to finance second trial as I stated to you on May 9.

(Signed) Leslie A. Simpson."

"Dakota Dan" was represented by his junior counsel, Attorney N. L. Sheldon, at the Supreme Court hearing. The Dakota rancheman is reported to be having a hard time raising funds to continue his fight in the courts.

BIG BILL KELIHER ENDURING PRISON HEAT ON ICE WATER

William J. (Big Bill) Keliher, one time sport, found today in the hosiery department of the Charlestown State prison much hotter than this time a year ago when he was sporting in the waves off Winthrop Crest. At the prison today it was said Big Bill is standing the torrid weather fairly well. They said he had lost about fifty pounds since he took up his abode for a term of eighteen years in Charlestown for his part in the looting of the National City Bank, Cambridge. Nobody hurries in the prison and that helps on a hot day. Keliher was clothed in light underwear and trousers as he worked at a machine. There was plenty of ice water pouring now in Bill's handy. He has given up worrying, apparently, and is disposed to make the best of a bad situation.

MAJESTIC OPENING DELAYED BY HEAT

The continuation of the hot spell has forced Lindsay Morrison to defer the appearance of Miss Nance O'Neil in "The Fires of St. John" at the Majestic Theatre until Thursday afternoon. Miss O'Neil, supported by the Lindsay Morrison stock company, was to have made her local stock debut yesterday afternoon. The opening will be on Thursday afternoon, regardless of the weather.

HEAT CALLS HALT IN BRICK BUSINESS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 9.—The heat is causing the brick manufacturers in Dover Point, Eliot, and along the banks of Piscataquis River, no little inconvenience, heating the finished bricks to such a degree that they are too hot to handle. Because of this, there are hundreds of car loads waiting to be delivered.

PARROT DRIVEN TO CUSSWORDS BY HEAT

HAMMOND, Ind., July 9.—Guests in a hotel hoteed were aroused by the cries of "Whew! It's hot as h——l in here!" issuing from a buiging bag in the parlor. The bag was found to contain a big parrot, the property of George Smith of New York city and his wife, auto tourists, bound for San Francisco.

DIXON OVERCOME BY HEAT AND WORK

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's campaign manager, arrived here from New York and went home to bed at once. The Senator was almost prostrated by the heat and pressure of work during the last few days.

Boston today wrestled with the hottest July 9 in its long history, and the hottest day of this Summer.

The mercury started off with a bang this morning, leading yesterday's temperature by nine degrees during the morning hours and at noon and 1 o'clock registering 97 degrees. No relief is in sight, the Weather Man says.

Two deaths and many prostrations were recorded in Greater Boston up to noon.

On Washington street 101 degrees was recorded. As many business and professional men as could hurried out of the city. Mayor Fitzgerald ordered every city employe that could be spared to be allowed to go home this afternoon.

At the State House business was at a standstill. Governor Foss remained in Cohasset.

The big glass thermometer poised behind the Governor's roll-top at the Mt. Vernon place window showed the mercury to be hovering at 99. It was so torrid that the governor's assistant secretary, George Harlow, early dispensed with office dignity by discarding his coat, collar and belt and he took up a position as near the water cooler in the corridor as possible.

Even then he sweltered until he rigged a spare electric fan on the ice water tank.

Hilles Republican National Chairman; Reynolds Secretary

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Charles Dewey Hilles, secretary to President Taft, was today selected by the committee on organization of the Republican National committee, to act as chairman of the National committee for the campaign of 1912. The selection of Hilles was made at the direct request of the President and followed a short White House conference today. The advisory and other committees will not be selected by the committee until the next meeting. James R. Reynolds of Boston, personal friend of the President and member of the defunct Tariff board, was selected secretary of the National committee.

After conferring with the sub-committee, Mr. Hilles announced that the Republican party would open headquarters in New York, Chicago and on Pacific Coast, probably in Portland, Oregon early in the Fall. The men in charge of these divisions will be announced later.

Secretary Hilles will become Chairman Hilles at midnight Saturday night, as he will tender his resignation of his present position to take effect at that time.

The selection of the treasurer will be made at the next meeting of the sub-committee to be held at the Waldorf, in New York city, July 10.

Roosevelt to Make Bay State Speech at The Pines Aug. 17

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt sent word to his friends in Boston today that he would make his first speech of his presidential campaign in this State at the Point of Pines on August 17.

By that time the Colonel expects to be the nominee of the Bull Moose party. In his visit to Massachusetts the Colonel accepted the invitation of the radical Roosevelt followers, headed by Matthew Hale and Charles Bird, and having headquarters at No. 15 State stret. This is the third party contingent.

There is another Boston Roosevelt organization with headquarters at No. 6 Beacon street. This is headed by Charles S. Baxter, who led the Roosevelt delegation that went to Chicago. These Republicans are for Roosevelt "withis the G. O. P."

In accepting the invitation of the third party men Roosevelt gives notice to New England that he proposes to head a party of his own and that those who are for him must desert the party that nominated Taft.

WASHERWOMAN FAILS AMERICAN ATHLETES; CLEAN CLOTHES FOR 5

STOCKHOLM, July 9.—Tuesday was woe today on board the Finland, the living quarters of the American athletes, over the absence of clean linen. The laundry woman who had contracted to wash the clothing of the Americans showed up with the garments of only five men, and they were not athletic togs. The laundress collected all the soiled clothing on July 1, declaring she would be able to do the task herself. It turned out to be a bigger undertaking than she had expected, with the result that the Yankee athletes had to don soiled shirts when they started for the stadium. The men appointed a committee to confer with the woman and urge her to hire assistance or else cancel the contract.

Samuel N. Brown, Millionaire, Leaves Property to Widow

Samuel Newell Brown, the millionaire local manager of the Fairbanks Scale Company, leaves his property to his wife, Charlotte Thompson Ames Brown, in his will filed today. To his son, Harold Haskell Brown, he left $1,000.

In the will, Mr. Brown says:

"I have already paid to him (meaning his son, Harold) a considerable sum, and there will be due to him at my death a further sum of life insurance."

In the clause bequeathing the property to his wife he says:

"One-tenth of the estate which I bequeath to my wife is to go to charity. But it is to be according to her absolute discretion, and she is not to be accountable to anyone for her actions in giving this money."

The will was made in November, 1910, and the witnesses were William T. French, Justin F. Emery and George W. Bunker, all of No. 42 Pearl street, Boston.

Mr. Brown died last week at the age of eighty-five years. Two years ago he married Mrs. Charlotte T. Bradley, who was forty years old. This marriage angered the son, Harold, and he left his father's house. Later he and his father patched up their disagreement. Mr. Brown declared yesterday that he did not expect to be cut off by his father. He admitted that there was no love lost between his stepmother and himself. Young M. Brown would not discuss any probability of his contesting the will until it had been filed.

NOMINATION COST GARDNER $165.45

AUGUSTA, Me., July 9.—United States Senator Obadiah Gardner of Rockland is the only one of the candidates in the primary election voted for in every precinct who has thus far filed a return showing that he spent anything to secure his nomination. Senator Gardner certifies that he spent $165.45. Congressman David J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston and Samuel W. Gould of Skowhegan say they spent nothing.

RAPHAEL 'MADONNA' NOW IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 9.—Raphael's painting, "The Madonna of St. Anthony of Padua," which J. P. Morgan purchased in Paris ten years ago for $500,000, has just been transferred from the National Gallery, London, to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, here. The picture was included in the eleventh consignment of Morgan art objects which arrived recently on the liner Olympic.

ROBERT BARRETT BROWNING, POET'S SON, DIES IN ITALY

LONDON, July 9.—Robert Barrett Browning, the only son of Robert Browning, the poet, and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning is dead at Asola, Italy. Mr. Browning was an artist and spent nearly all his life in Italy. He was sixty-three years old. Since the death of his father, in 180, he had lived alternately in the old palaces in Venice, left him by his parents, and in the villa at Asola, where the poet did some of his greatest work. Robert Barret Browning was born in 1849, in Italy. From the beginning his environment was of an artistic nature, and he inherited some of the temperament of his parents. When a child he showed a liking for a painter's career. In 1887, two years before his father's death, Mr. Browning married Miss Fannie Coddington, daughter of T. B. Coddington, of New York city.

WITH GREEN CREW, CAR HITS WAGON AND SHAKES PASSENGERS

Several persons were badly shaken up today when an outbound Ashmont-Talbot avenue car collided with a team owned by the George T. Kinley Leather Company of No. 145 South street, at the junction of Dudley street and Rice Hi- avenue. A number of women in the car screamed with fright. The running board of the car, in charge of a green crew, was side-swiped and partly demolished. The police of the Dudley street station, nearby, were attracted by the crash. A big crowd collected.

HUNDRED SWITCHMEN STRIKE ON ELEVATED

One hundred of the 400 switchmen employed by the Boston Elevated Company went on strike today.

The striking switchmen called at the strike headquarters today and asked Organizer Fay to organize them into a union. Their demand is under advisement.

The switchmen report that night men were paid $15.31 for a seven-night week and day men $16.05 which included time-and-a-half on Sunday. They say they were promised a $5 bonus every week if they remained loyal to the company during the strike of the motormen and conductors.

They got the extra $5 two weeks, but when paid off last night the majority did not find the bonus in their envelopes. They complain that only "favorites" got the $5 and that receiving no satisfactory explanation they quit. Both night and day men are on strike.

Statement By Brush.

Second Vice-President Mathew C. Brush of the Elevated Company today absolutely denied that the switchmen of the road had gone on strike. He said:

"There is absolutely no truth in the statement that the switchmen have gone on strike. Most of these men we have picked up to look after the switches during the heavy summer traffic. Last night five or six of these men left our employ, but these men are being hired and discharged every day. The majority of them are schoolboys, under twenty years of age, to whom employment is given during the Summer months. Some of them got tired of work and suddenly threw up their jobs. In regard to the talk of them being loyal, when he speak of 'being loyal' we only refer to the men who have been in our employ for some time—bearers of service stripes."

C. L. U. Meeting Tonight.

The executive board of the Boston Central Labor Union at its meeting tonight will consider the question, "Shall a sympathetic strike of union men in Boston be ordered to aid the striking employes of the Boston Elevated road?"

The following statement was issued by the executive committee of the striking carmen today:

Faced by the horrors of a general strike that ultimately may involve the 80,000 organized wage-earners of Boston, the residents of this city at last are awakened to the dangerous condition brought on by the persistent refusal of the Elevated management to recognize the just claims of their striking employes.

We are pleased to learn that the fair-minded members of the city government have taken issue with the Elevated on this question. We are also confident that the State Board of Arbitration in their report, after going over the matter thoroughly, will show conclusively who is at fault in the whole affair. Once aroused to the dangers of the situation, the general public, through an adverse public opinion, will compel favorable action by the Elevated on our request. The greatest thing to be feared, in the meantime, is the arbitrary stand of the police and the uncalled for severity of the courts, who may precipitate a general strike at any moment if their hounding of our men continues.

Lest there be any misunderstanding as to our attitude, we wish at this time to reiterate our willingness to arbitrate all questions involved in this strike, and the offer to refer the whole question to Chief Justice Rugg, Lurlin Tuttle or the State Board of Arbitration still holds good.

SENATOR LORIMER'S DEFENCE DRAGS ON

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The third day's consideration of the Lorimer case started with the resumption by Senator Fletcher of Florida of his speech in defense of the Illinois Senator. Senator Dillingham followed Senator Fletcher. He elaborated on the motive of the Democratic members of the Illinois Legislature in voting for Lorimer. He said the evidence showed Senator Hopkins was not only politically but personally objectionable to the Illinois Democrats, and that the Democratic members of the Illinois Legislature were willing to vote for any one to defeat him. He declared the only argument used to induce Democrats to vote for Lorimer was that of political expediency.

Rose Pitonof Off to England Is Sure She Can Swim Channel

ROSE PITONOF, JUST BEFORE SHE SAILED TODAY.

Ambitious to Be First Woman to Accomplish Great Water Feat.

"I'm going to swim the English channel or die in the attempt. If I fail I shan't let them pull me into a boat. I'll just sink. I want to be the first woman to do it, so as to bring honor to the Stars and Stripes."

This was Rose Pitonof's farewell to America, as she sailed for England on the Franconia from East Boston today. The Boston champion girl swimmer went on:

"I mean every word of it. I simply can't afford to fail. And why should I after my swim of twenty-five miles from New York city to Coney Island, against the changes of tides and eight hours in the water?

"I have studied up the experiences of the men who have attempted the English channel. I realize that the chief handicap will be in the cold currents, but I'm ready to conquer them and return to Uncle Sam a winner. Just watch.

"I shall try it as soon as possible. I must have it over with because I have a great many engagements abroad, so many that I cannot return until Christmas. Doesn't that seem a long time to be away from home, from good old Boston where I love so dearly."

A big crowd of admirers gathered at the pier to give Rose a send-off. Many came from New York and other cities. They brought gifts and flowers which filled the Pitonof cabin.

In swimming the English channel, Miss Pitonof, who is now 18, will wear a single-piece bathing suit with a white American eagle stamped on the breast.

BROOKLINE GUARDS ITS WATER SUPPLY

For the first time in many years the Brookline Water Board today took steps to guard against a possible shortage in the town supply. The drought prompted the water board to issue circulars prohibiting the use of hose until further notice except on flower and vegetable gardens.

COMFORT FOR THE NERVES

Worn-out, Irritable, Despondent Men and Women Should Try This Treatment.

It is impossible to have thin, impure blood and strong, healthy nerves and muscles. Instead, every part of the body becomes weak. The stomach fails in strength and the appetite becomes poor. The body does not obtain enough nourishment from the food and is actually starved. Soon the nerves begin to complain and the person becomes irritable, despondent, worn-out and nervous. For a time there may be no sickness, only a general run-down, weak state, but there is no real defence against disease, and from such a condition spring numerous disorders, as rheumatism, severe nervous diseases, stomach trouble, anaemia and chronic headaches.

Mrs. J. D. Cline, of No. 189 East Federal street, Youngstown, Ohio, says: "I was all run down and on the verge of nervous prostration from overwork and worry. I was so nervous that the least noise irritated me and I wanted to be alone and see no one. My appetite was very poor. My stomach bloated and distressed me after eating. I had to vomit frequently. There were sharp, quick pains in my back as though needles were being pricked into me. On going up stairs or hurrying I became short of breath. My feet would become swollen if I was on them for any length of time and the swelling was very noticeable in the morning. I often had fainting, suffocating spells, when life seemed to leave me. I tried many medicines without benefit and then decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People upon a friend's advice. I was sick in bed when I began taking the pills. After using them for a week I commenced to get better. I continued their use for some time. My nervous trouble disappeared and I was completely restored to health. I am sure that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure other nervous sufferers as they have cured me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed by the manufacturers to contain no opiate, narcotic or anything that could injure the most delicate system. Send today for a copy of our booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System." It is free upon a postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

SAILORS REGARD STRIKE AS WON

Firemen and sailors on coastwise vessels sailing from this port today regard their strike as won. The Harper, Eastern, Nantasket, Nahant, Chesborough, Cape Cod and Commercial Tow Boat companies have settled with the union and have granted the increase in wages.

The New England Coal & Coke Company, with eight boats, the Coastwise Transportation Company with three and the White Oak Company with three have not yet settled.

The Weather Man with coat and collar off and sleeves rolled up, was just as hot at the top of the postoffice building as people on the street. The best he could hold out in the way of hope was the possibility of a sea breeze for a short time this afternoon.

The rain yesterday was local and so slight that many people in Greater Boston didn't know it happened. There is no record of it at the weather bureau.

"Any rain in sight?" the Weather Man was asked.

"No," he replied crisply.

All the streets in the congested districts of the city were flushed by the fire department today and the work will be kept up as long as the hot weather lasts. Fire Commissioner Cole states that the department has been unable to use the hose on the streets before today owing to the unusual demands made upon it by the 184 still and 182 bell alarms in Boston from July 1 till midnight last night.

The week has been unusually trying for the fire department, July 4 contributing almost half of the work forced upon it. A letter was sent to all fire stations today by Chief Mullen, complimenting the firemen on their services.

Less Humidity Today.

Boston was favored with less humidity today than yesterday. It was 76 yesterday. Today it was only 62. That helps some.

The hottest places in the United States today were Boston, Providence and Key West. The coolest place was Edmonton, in the Northwest. It was 42 there at 8 o'clock.

The only place in the country where it rained was Raleigh, N. C.

Still, it may be some satisfaction to know that it was hotter in July last year than this year. On nine days of the month the mercury got above 90.

Men and women who came to business in Boston today showed the distress of last night's heat. Hitherto the nights have been cool. But at 6 o'clock yesterday evening the temperature was 88 and at midnight 80. That was from four to eight degrees hotter than on previous nights.

Streets in the congested districts were flushed today. Horses were driven slowly and watered frequently. Street cars and boats bounded seaward were crowded. Everybody was dressed in his and her lightest, coolest suit.

Activity at Hospitals.

In the hospitals additional preparations were made to care for persons overcome with the heat. Ambulances and nurses were on the alert to save life.

From the country districts come stories of vegetation being burned by the fierce rays of the sun. The farmers are praying for rain.

Forest fires are burning in various sections of the State. Fire wardens are on the watch to prevent expensive conflagrations.

The policemen of Worcester, sweltering under their helmets, made a kick. Mayor O'Connell saw to it that they were allowed to don straw hats.

TWO CARS BURNED IN WESTBORO WITH LOSS OF $10,000

WESTBORO, July 9.—Two large semi-convertible cars on the Boston & Worcester Street Railway burned early today, with a loss of about $10,000, presumably through some trouble with the circuit or voltage. Both cars were bowling along when fire was discovered. The distance between the two cars, when they took fire was about three miles. The cars, which burned to the trucks, were of the most modern type, and had been in use but a short time.

The editor of El Monitor, a rebel paper published in Chihuahua, is among those reported executed.

RABBIS WON'T ACT ON MEAT

The orthodox Jewish rabbis in convention at Malden today voted to have nothing to do with the Boston kosher meat boycott. It was agreed that as the meat controversy had no religious significance the convention could not take official action or recognizance.

The convention agreed to hear the men and women leaders of the boycott if they cared to tell their stories, but announced support could not be given. So the leaders declined to appear.

The convention began Sunday and ends tomorrow. About eighty rabbis from all parts of the United States and Canada attending. Tonight a banquet will be given to the delegates at Synagogue Beth Israel, Pavilion street, Malden. Mayor Farrell and other members of the city government together with many business men have been invited.

STEINERT, HELD FOR JURY, SAILS

Russell Steinert, of No. 401 Commonwealth avenue, W.E.) has been bound over in $5000 for the August sitting of the Suffolk grand jury, on the charge of manslaughter, in causing the death of Louis Tempesta, in an automobile accident, sailed today for Europe on the Franconia. He was accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Steinert, and his brothers, Alexander L. and Robert S. Steinert.

Assistant District Attorney McIsaac said it was proper for Mr. Steinert to go abroad even though the Grand Jury case is pending. Mr. McIsaac explained that if the Grand Jury decided to take action against Mr. Steinert he could return in season to answer to an indictment, while if no bill should happen to be returned his presence would not be required.

Mr. Steinert was arranged yesterday before Judge Williams in the Roxbury District Court. The accident occurred on Columbus avenue, Roxbury, last Saturday. Tempesta, who was a popular waiter at the Georgian, was invited by Mr. Steinert to take a ride home in his automobile, which collided with a wagon, and the waiter guest received fatal injuries.

Nielsen Will Sing Here Again
Comes to Create New Parts

ALICE NIELSEN, FAMOUS OPERA SOPRANO.

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

PARIS, June 29.—Finding Henry Russell, director of the Boston Opera, in Europe, is nearly as difficult as catching a flea. Finding the gentleman down and extracting from him his plans for the coming year is as hard a job as catching him.

By the forcible but necessary process of grabbing his flying coattails I detained him long enough to secure an interview upon the topic of the Boston Opera. He had arrived from London the night before and was off for Italy in the morning.

It was a Monday morning in the offices of the Boston Opera at 25 Rue Spontini. The Rue Spontini is not a business street nor is 25 an office building. It is a typical Parisian apartment house of the better class in a narrow street out Passaywards, in a quarter where reside the musical elite of Paris.

Mr. Russell lives there while he is in Paris. He has the entresol, which means the ground floor apartment, opposite the office of the concierge.

Last year a Count and Countess lived upstairs and used to complain to the concierge about the howling and yowling of the candidates for grand opera who used to try their voices for the benefit of the impresario.

They moved, and thereby hangs a tragedy. In their place came a family with five children, all musical, and about five hours a day a family orchestra rehearsed.

So the Boston Opera is going to move and Mr. Russell has secured an apartment in the Rue Edmond About for next season.

When he discovered he had to be interviewed Mr. Russell was quite mysterious and stated that there are big things in the air that have not crystalized yet.

Without worrying about these, we can go right ahead with what is already decided upon, and if Mr. Russell can go through with this program there won't be much time for anything else.

Alice Nielsen is going to be a person of importance in Boston. After a year's absence, during which she sang in concert and with the Metropolitan, she will return at midseason and create new parts. She is to be Donna Anna of the great revival of Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and she will create in Boston the soprano part of Wolf Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna."

Edith Edwins is slated to create Louise in Boston, although Mr. Russell won't announce it. Mary Garden, whose Louise is famous in America, will appear in it also.

"Don Giovanni" will be our greatest revival of the season. It is many years since this beautiful opera has been given a proper production in America. With Weingartner to conduct, it will undoubtedly be an epoch in Boston musical history.

"Brozia will not return," said Mr. Russell. "We shall be extraordinarily strong in soprano next season and shall not need her. We shall have Mary Garden, Marcel, Melis, Ternanini, Frida Hempel, Alice Nielsen and Edith Edwins. We can secure from New York and Chicago, Destinn, Gadski, Fremstad, Caroline White and other artists.

"Our company is really very complete, last season, in fact, it reached a high degree of excellence and it merely needed the discarding of a few who were not successful and the substitution of others."

"Your new productions appear to be French except 'Don Giovanni.'"

"That is true. We shall devote our best efforts to modern French opera this season. Last year our great successes were in the French school, and we have the good fortune to possess in Andre Caplet the best of all French conductors, and it would be idiotic not to take advantage of the fact.

"Our productions of 'Pelleas et Melisande' and 'Samson et Dalila' provoked the greatest enthusiasm of the season. I intend that 'Louise' will be worthy of them."

NOVELIST DAVIS ON HONEYMOON

NEW YORK, July 9.—Richard Harding Davis, the novelist, and goldeu-haired Bessie McCoy, his bride, are today beginning their honeymoon on his farm at Mt. Kisco. The joyous event will be prolonged by a motor trip.

For a novelist, whose skill at romance is undoubted and for a girl born and brought up in the mimic world, their marriage was as plain as print could make it. They were wedded in the law office of Judge William H. Rodgers and by him, at Greenwich.

The place was kept secret until the last moment. When the automobiles carrying the couple and their friends drew up at the entrance of the law office, this explanation was offered:

Bessie: "Oh, it's the easiest."

Richard: "And the quickest."

Davis gave his age as forty-eight. Miss McCoy as twenty-four. Her name, by the way, was Elizabeth Genevieve Duffy. She wore a gown of silk under embroidered lace and carried a huge sun bonnet.

Charles Belmont Davis, the story writer and a brother of the groom, who next marries Mrs. Ethel Barrymore Colt, was matron of honor. She was maid of honor at Mr. Davis' first marriage thirteen years ago to Miss Cecil Clark of Chicago.

There was some talk that Bessie McCoy might give up the stage. Her mother, at her home in New Rochelle, said she did not think so.

"Bessie isn't much of a hand at housekeeping," said her mother. "But it will be a happy marriage because it was a love match. I know that after the honeymoon Mr. Davis will write his best novel."

AVIATORS ORGANIZE TO SAVE THOSE LEFT

CHICAGO, July 9.—In order to save the lives of remaining American fliers the American Aviators' Association is being organized here. Permanent organization will be completed July 20. Members pledge themselves not to fly in an aeroplane which they do not think safe, and they agree to seek action through the National Aeronautical body against managers or employers who seek to force aviators into unsafe flights.

DOUBT HEADLESS CASE IDENTITY

WOONSOCKET, July 9.—When Henri Desbouvre is arraigned next Saturday before Judge McFee as a suspect in the headless murder mystery of the Blackstone, in which the nude decapitated body of a woman figures, his attorneys will call witnesses to establish that they saw Angele Parmentier Delmotte, believed to be the dead woman, leave this city on a car at the time she disappeared.

Desbouvre's attorneys are searching the mill cities of New England for the French woman. They believe that she will be found in time to discredit the claim of the police that the river victim is she, and that she was murdered by the prisoner.

So far as could be learned today the police have not dug up any evidence of a conclusive nature that the body of the woman is that of Mrs. Parmentier-Delmotte, with whom Desbouvre eloped from France. An attempt will be made by the prosecution to have the case adjourned on Saturday, but this will be strongly opposed by Desbouvre's lawyers, who will claim that the police have had two weeks in which to work up a case and if they could not do it in that time they will not be able to do it at all.

KNIFE NEW CLEW IN CASE OF SLAIN GIRL

NEW YORK, July 9.—Three prisoners who were held as possible suspects in the case of little Julia Conners, whose knife-slashed body was found in a lot at One Hundred and Seventy Third street and Third avenue in the Bronx on Saturday morning, have been released from custody by Coroner Shongut and Detective-Captain Price.

A wooden-handled knife with a five-inch blade, discovered in a pile of dirt in front of the house where Julia Conners was buried, supplied the police with their first clew of importance. If the weapon was not "planted" there, it may fasten the crime on some one shortly.

KILLS SON BY ACCIDENT

MILFORD, N. H., July 9.—Mrs. George Stilham of Souhegan street was playing together a small rifle which she did not know contained a cartridge, when the weapon was discharged. The ball entered the abdomen of her little son, Harold Stanley Stilham, causing death.

DUDLEY EMPLOYES WIN SHORT STRIKE

DUDLEY, July 9.—Thirty-two employes of the polishing, cord and picker rooms at the Chase mills of the American Woolen Company refused to work when the mills opened yesterday, alleging that their wages were insufficient to support their families. The men gathered near the office and awaited the arrival of Supt. Frenzies Howard. He granted a 10 per cent. increase. The new wage scale went into effect immediately. The 25 mule spinners of the Chase mills, who struck for more pay last week, Thursday, were granted an increase of $2.10 per week yesterday by the officials. The spinners will now be paid $11.50 a week. An increase of 50 cents per week was also given the spinners' helpers.

TAGGART IN DARK ON CONTRIBUTIONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 9.—Little concerning the Democratic contributions of 1904 was gleaned from Tom Taggart, chairman of the National Democratic Committee from 1904 until after the nomination of Bryan in 1908, when the Indiana politician took the stand today before the sub-committee of the Senate committee on privileges and elections. Disclaiming all personal knowledge of any contributions save one of about $1,000, which he made himself, Mr. Taggart declared he had learned from his associates that August Belmont, Thomas F. Ryan and Cord Meyer were the chief contributors.

CONTINENTAL DAY AT PARAGON PARK

"This is 'Continental Day'" at Paragon Park. The 150 employes of the Continental Clothing House, errand boys and all, were taken on an outing this afternoon as guests of the management. The store was closed at 5:30 p. m. and special cars carried the merrymakers to Rowes Wharf.

A banquet will be served in the Palm Garden this evening.

AWAIT PLANS FOR CANADIAN NAVY

OTTAWA, Ont., July 9.—The Canadian public is awaiting with interest the negotiations now in progress in London between Premier Borden and the British admiralty regarding the proposed Canadian Navy. The Borden Government has disavowed the Laurier policy, and will endeavor to substitute something it considers better.

MAY GET MOORE AS SCHOOL HEAD

Professor Ernest Carroll Moore, head of the department of education at Yale, may succeed Stratton D. Brooks as superintendent of the Boston public schools.

Professor Moore is understood to be willing to take the position if the Boston School Committee can arrange matters to his satisfaction. The Boston committee has been conferring with him some days.

Prof. Moore was superintendent of the public schools of Los Angeles from 1906 to 1910 and was a member of the special commission of seven appointed by the National Educational Association last year to investigate the salaries, cost of living and other data relative to the lives of teachers in the United States.

Professor Moore was born at Youngstown, O., July 20, 1871, the son of John A. and Martha Jane (Forsythe). He got an A. B. from the Ohio Normal University in 1892 and the degree of LL.B. in 1894, Columbia College and a Ph.D. at the University of Chicago in 1898.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

(From The Guide to Beauty.)

These days the face, neck, arms and hands need special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the burning sun, are severe on any skin. Their disfiguring effects are best overcome by the application of pure unscented wax. The keen skin and pores in a clearly condition, the complexion beautifully white and smooth. Tan, freckles, blotches and roughness which are usually absorbed by it. One ounce of unscented wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin feeds on oxygen in warm weather, cleanse and chin by day and wrinkles to form. A good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve powdered alum in witch hazel, using a teaspoonful to a pint. Before the face is rinsed in cool water or before using out for theatre or social affair, it is a remarkable skin tightener and whitening agent.

In Washington today it was said that Miss Wilhelmina Lonsdale showed her marriage certificate to Miss Rebecca Moore and Miss Nathalie Bulkley of Washington, when they visited her in Atlantic City.

SAMSON AND M'NARY--- SURE, THEY COME BACK

By BRENNAN MOORE,
The Roxbury Philosopher.

Ned Mulcahy was tellin' me this mornin' how William Sarsfield McNary has come back, an' come back strhong, with a five-thousan'-dollar-a-year place on the Harbor an' Low' Commission.

'Twas me that was glad t' hear it.

William Sarsfield never made but two seerius mistakes in his life.

One was when he consinted t' take a place in th' Boston Common Council, ole style.

Th' other was whin he shaved off his whiskers.

'Tis a great mistake, me frinds, f'r a man who has worn a bush f'r tin or twinty years ever t' be disfoorgoded by an Italian barber. An' especially so if he has made his great successes behin' th' manuscade.

I knew a fella, one time, I think he livin' on t' Maiden, now if he aint dead —which amounts to the same thing—but th' divvle a lad in th' shop with him ever dared to "call" him in a poker game.

'Twas th' whiskers.

He cud look you in th' eye, from behin' that barricade, with only a pair of trays in his han', "see" your quarter an' make it a half, an' compel you t' lay down a full house. I wudden't have tackled him at forty-fives, an' whin I was a bonchin' me head t' tell you, I was th' champeen forty-fives player of Fort Hill. Whin he roared "Bye!" in his deep-chested voice of a New Bedford whalin' captain, the plaster wud fall an' office boys wint t' th' hospital on the run in fear of th' rush to be first at His Whiskerses elbow.

"Into th' Hands of a Barber."

Well, sir, that poor ounchuck wint out wan day, after an all night session at poker, an' fell into th' hands of a barber who ought t' have been driving a New York taxi. He was the first customer in to' shop when th' Italian-man opened up, an' was a raisy mornin.' So he fell asleep.

Whin he woke up his whiskers were gone.

He sat in in another game that same night, an' he lost four hundred an' twinty dollars before he wint home sick at eleven.

Whin he tried t' yell "Bye!" nex' mornin,' th' little shaver in th' office told him where he cud go, an' in th' wurrid we been havin' here lately I wuddent send a dog there.

So it was with William Sarsfield, whin William Sarsfield tuk them down.

At 22, as I said before, William became implicated in th' old City Council—which was no place f'r a mahster's son—an' he held his own with th' best boys there. Here he learned to fight, but with his whiskers doin' so well nobody dared thread on the tail of his coat.

So it wint.

At 27 he was Representive, at 29 a Senator. In his early thirties we sint him to a Nashnal Convinshun.

Twinty years ago he were three times Chairman of th' State Comity.

They sint him t' Congress from th' Fifth' Tinth—which is not a Reimint but a Division.

"An' Then He Shaved."

An' then he shaved.

Th' Lord save us from all barrum.

In his nakedness, Willum Sarsfield was as weak as another Samson. He wuddent have voted f'r himself. Th' smaller boy in K street wouldn't dip his hat t' him no more.

Back t' Congress? My frind, he cuddent have gone back t' th' Young Men's Lot'ry Society.

It was just as if he had dropped a mask nh' said, "Sure I was only foolin,' an' th' laffin' worrald says 'We're sorry you, Willie'"

Politically speakin'—for pers'nly Willum Sarsfield is one of the finest gintlemin you'd meet in a day's journey—his deposition turned to blood an' thunder.

F'r twinty years he's been fightin'—fightin' without his strength, fightin' without his whiskers.

"And how is it he comes back now?" says you.

Dung th' one o' me knows, says I, except th' Lord lovin a fighter. Praps twinty years of fightin' and fightin' has brought forgiveness for the almos' unpardonable sin of shavin' thim off.

If you haven't got a crop of whiskers, me bop, don't think of havin' one. Whiskers don't grow right anywhere they're needed. But if you have got a feather duster, an' if th' worrild is wood t' you, an' all goes well with you, f'r th' love of Malachi have wud enough where it is.

"Is a Great Irish-Man."

An' do I think William Sarsfield will stop fightin'?

Yeh! Can you keep a squirrel on th' ground?

Faith then I do not! I think he'll fight an' fight as Harbor an' Low' Commissioner. I don't believe he'll stop fightin' until the fort of Boston extinds from Salisbury Beach to Providence, an' they has traffic cops in th' Harbor t' keep th' liners in line.

An', if you ax me, I think th' "Ole Boy" picked him out f'r a fighter. Th' "Ole Boy" may need a fighter or two in his stable, along about New Year's or so, when they're electin' a United States senator.

"William Sarsfield is a great Irish-man," one of me friends says th' other day.

"He is," says I, "all th' way from Abington in Plymouth County, where th' Town Clark is a Pilgrim Father by th' name o' Coughlin, an' Jim Dwyer is on th' Board of Selectmin."

"MANY TOMORROWS, MY LOVE, MY LOVE, BUT ONLY ONE TODAY."

During the recent General Conference of the Federated Women's Clubs in San Francisco, several hundred delegates made a pilgrimage to "The Heights," the home of Joaquin Miller, the "Poet of the Sierras." A feature of the occasion was the singing by the poet's daughter Juanita of "The Dove," a poem written for her and which she set to music. Here is the poem:

THE DOVE.

Come listen, O Love, to the voice of the dove.
Come harken and hear him say:
"There are many tomorrows, my love, my love,
There is only one today."

Now what is thy secret, serene gray dove,
Of wooing and winning al-way?
"There are many tomorrows, my love, my love,
There is only one today."

PETITION TAFT TO WITHDRAW

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The circulation of petitions in every State calling upon President Taft to withdraw as the Republican presidential candidate is expected to begin within a week. The move is backed by a large number of Republican office-holders who feel that they face defeat in November unless the breach in the party can be healed.

These men include members of Congress, members of State legislatures which will elect Senators, State and county office-holders and party candidates. If the movement to petition Mr. Taft to withdraw gains any volume, it is said, the same men in the interest of party harmony may ask Colonel Roosevelt also to withdraw as a prospective candidate for an independent nomination, and permit a compromise selection of some man agreeable to both factions of the party.

It is the desire of the promoters of the scheme that a decision shall be reached before August 5, when the Roosevelt faction plans to hold a convention in Chicago.

NEW ROOSEVELT PARTY SLATE

NEW YORK, July 9.—This is the slate of officers for the New Roosevelt party:

For Chairman of the National Committee, Joseph M. Dixon of Montana.

For Secretary, Medill McCormick of Illinois.

For Treasurer, George W. Perkins of New York.

For Chairman New York State Committee, Timothy L. Woodruff.

For National Committeeman from New York, W. A. Prendergast.

The National managers will be chosen at the conclusion of the convention called for Chicago, August 5. Within a few days, probably, a provisional State committee will be formed. If Roosevelt has his way, his friends say Timothy L. Woodruff will be the chairman of that committee and conduct the New York campaign.

Here is Colonel Roosevelt's program for making his ticket the regular Republican ticket in States where the Progressive Republican are in control:

In such States as Taft controlled the conventions or primaries, the President is entitled to have the names of his nominee for electors on the ballot in the Republican party column.

In such States as Roosevelt carried the conventions or primaries he is entitled to have his electors on the ballot in the regular Republican column. Wherever Taft won, Roosevelt will name his electors by petition.

That there may be no confusion among voters as to what ticket they are supporting and in which column they are voting, the Roosevelt managers purpose to have the Roosevelt column headed:

"National Progressive party.
"For President—Theodore Roosevelt.
"For Vice-President———"

KILLS HERSELF AND TWO CHILDREN

WEST CHESTER, Pa., July 9.—After she had prepared breakfast for her two children—Mary, aged seven, and Noble, aged five, Mrs. Florence Boyd, forty-one, wife of Edward Boyd, went to their room, closed the doors and windows, stuffed the crevices with paper, turned on the gas and lay down beside the little ones to die. All three were dead when found.

GORE TELLS OF WILSON HOPES

SEAGIRT, N. J., July 9.—Senator Gore of Oklahoma, after his visit to Woodrow Wilson, said:

"The Democratic party is a unit, battling as one man, under Wilson's leadership, for real Democracy. We have a chieftain who is not revolutionary on the one hand or reactionary upon the other. I cannot say too often—I want this to go down—that Governor Wilson is wise enough to know that 'Too swift arrives as tardily as too slow.'"

"On the other hand, the Republican party is distracted and dismembered. The reactionary forces are in the minority. The insurgent element in the Republican party will be divided into three encampments. Party ties are a powerful bondage, and a few progressives will support Taft; but this will be a negligible number. The vast majority will support Roosevelt—many of them out of enthusiasm, or infatuation for heir leader.

"A considerable number of the progressive Republicans will support Wilson—those who are determined to defeat the standard element in the Republican party and who intend to eliminate risk from the proposition."

Asked if he thought the candidate should resign as chief executive of the State of New Jersey, Senator Gore replied humorously:

"I never knew a good Democrat to resign a good job."

IOWA REPUBLICANS ASK TAFT TO QUIT

DES MOINES, Ia., July 9.—A resolution asking President Taft to resign his nomination for the presidency, and rebuking the Chicago convention in naming a candidate before purging the roll of fraudulent delegates, will be presented to the State Republican convention tomorrow. The progressives are in overwhelming control of the convention, and it is expected that the resolutions will be adopted. The convention is expected to also indorse Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency.

MRS. W. H. TAFT SEES SELF IN THE "MOVIES"

Mrs. William H. Taft attended a moving picture show at Dreamland in Beverly, and with a number of Summer residents witnessed a private exhibition of the reception and parade in honor of President Taft on Fourth of July morning.

LAWRENCE AIDS WALKER'S RACE

The State campaign was opened today with the distribution of nomination papers at the office of the Secretary of State. The first taken out were for Joseph Walker of Brookline, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Julian Dillody, Mr. Walker's political manager, procured the papers. The office was thronged with candidates for the Senate, House, and other State offices. They came from all corners of the Commonwealth.

It was announced at Walker headquarters that assurances had been received from Congressman George P. Lawrence that he would not be a candidate against Walker. Congressman Lawrence's recent announcement that he would not be a candidate for renomination to Congress next Fall was accepted as indicating that he planned on entering the race for the governorship.

COUPON HOSTS ENJOY REVERE

The free coupons of the Sunday AMERICAN were the attraction at Revere Beach yesterday.

More than one thousand free coupons were taken at The Dream during the afternoon and the early part of the evening. The newest moving pictures were given.

At the "Sinking of the Titanic," the coupons were very popular, more than 70 being taken during the afternoon. The Haverhill Boys' club, in charge of Superintendent Edward D. Bailey, availed itself of the Sunday AMERICAN coupons. Charles Raymond gave a graphic description of the event.

At the Revere Theatre, "Virginius" was the drawing card, with novelty songs by John Burns and Samuel Mooney. Other excellent pictures were also shown.

Marie Horne was one of the attractive diving girls at Patter's Diving Girls, where 475 coupons were used in the afternoon. The Murray Twins, Mary O'Loughlin, Da Dive, and Frank Vigneau are some of the weekly hits at this popular place.

At the Scenic Theatre, "Tessler," with his novelty saxophone act, and "Jack" Foley in his unique dances, were among the features.

Free coupons will be given next Sunday for the Dream Theatre, and "Sinking of the Titanic."

FEAR 40 MINERS DEAD IN ENGLAND

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng., July 9.—An explosion wrecked a section of the Gadeby coal pit at Conisborough, Yorkshire, today. Mine officials said the death list would assuredly be more than forty, while others were missing and were believed to be dead in the shaft. It was feared that any of the imprisoned miners would be killed by the poisonous fumes.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon thirty bodies had been recovered. Many of the corpses taken out were burned so badly they could not be identified.

A striking circumstance in connection with the mine disaster was the fact that King George visited the colliery yesterday and was shown through the plant. If the explosion had happened twenty-four hours earlier the King might have lost his life.

Your Picture Is Worth $5

Photographs of Boston Women Shoppers Show the Truth About Hub Styles.

Are you watching the pictures of the stylish Boston shoppers appearing in the AMERICAN each day?

If you are, you must be convinced, as the AMERICAN is, that New Yorkers' claim that Boston women are "frumps" is based wholly upon imagination.

Hundreds of pictures will be taken at random, here, there and all around the shopping district. One of these pictures will be published each day in the AMERICAN, and a whole page of them will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN. Any woman whose picture is printed has but to don the clothing worn when the picture was taken and come to the AMERICAN Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, where a new $5 gold piece will be handed to her as a slight recognition of her part in deciding this vexed question.

Watch the AMERICAN evening and Sunday!

If you want shopping yesterday or if you go shopping today or tomorrow, or if you want shopping on those same days last week, your picture may appear any day, and when it does, you will be five dollars richer.

Rockefeller Beats Old Rival at Golf

Playing Like a Man of Forty, He Has Cut Down Score From 1911 Figures for Course.

CLEVELAND, July 9.—Just because he was seventy-three years old, John D. Rockefeller felt so good that he took the measure of Dr. E. B. Rhodes, for some time his master at golf.

"I guess it is because it was my birthday," Mr. Rockefeller said. "I have been trying a long time to beat Rhodes, but he has always been just a little too much for me."

Others who golfed were the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bustard, formerly of Boston; Dr. H. F. Biggar, and Captain Schofield. Mr. Rockefeller played like a man of forty.

Mr. Rockefeller is in better health this Summer than for several years. He is heavier, sleeps better, eats more and plays a better game of golf than he did a year ago. He is making the nine holes of his course in 47 to 48 nowadays. Fifty-one was his best mark in 1911.

EXPLANATIONS BY TWO JUDGES

Judge Bennett Tells What He Meant by His Faneuil Hall Talk

Judge Bennett of the Municipal Court declares that he was not correctly quoted in the Herald concerning his remarks on the use of Faneuil Hall for meetings that might end in riotous proceedings. He also denies having urged the taking away of the power to let the hall for any kind of meeting. He asserted today:

What I did say was: "I question seriously the wisdom of allowing Faneuil Hall, the Cradle of liberty, as it is called, to be used for any public property, to be used for demonstrations that reasonably might be expected to end in acts of lawlessness."

Commenting on the Sunday meeting specifically, I said: "The case in question is before the Essex County courts. Under severe criticism of the method of procedure in these courts, while the case is pending, would seem to be unwarranted and an indirect reflection on all court procedure in this Commonwealth."

Not for one moment did I so much as intimate that private halls should be closed against any kind of meeting where freedom of speech would be involved.

Judge Fallon Says He Understood Conroy Acknowledged Guilt

Judge Fallon of the South Boston District Court today explained why he sentenced Odenus Conroy to three months' imprisonment yesterday, as the result of a fight he had with John Marion, a strike-breaking conductor, while Marion was let go. Judge Fallon said:

Conroy, as I understood it, pleaded guilty. Then I called the complaining officers, and Lawyer Jones of the Elevated Company came forward with them. I wanted to know how severe the attack was so that I could decide on the punishment.

As far as the Elevated railroad or any other corporation or any individual is concerned, they are all the same to me in this court. I aim to deal out justice regardless of corporations or individuals. I have no sympathies for either side in this case.

"Conroy said in court that he struck Marion," Judge Fallon was reminded, "but he insisted he did it in self-defense."

"He said it struck him," said Judge Fallon. "That was sufficient for the court. That was a case of guilty."

After Conroy was sentenced he again told Judge Fallon that he had acted in self-defense. Conroy appealed and was released on bail.

FEAR ATTEMPT TO RESCUE CAMORRISTS

VITERBO, Italy, July 9.—A heavy guard of troops was maintained today about the prison holding the Camorrists convicted yesterday of the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife. The authorities fear members of the band untrapped when the leaders were rounded up will make an attempt to rescue their colleagues. Members of the jury will be guarded for six months and their families will be pensioned by the government if any of the panel are assassinated. The authorities declared today, however, that the death knell of the Camorra had been sounded and that there will be little, if any, effort by the less daring members at large to exact vengeance.

DIPHTHERIA ABOARD M. F. PLANT'S YACHT

PORTLAND, July 9.—Three of the crew of the crack schooner yacht Elena, owned by Morton F. GETS HELP AFTER HOPE HAS GONE

C. E. Loeffler, Victim of Nervous Debility Is Well Again

The following statement was made recently by C. E. Loeffler of 200 Columbus avenue, concerning the remarkable new tonic, Tona Vita:

"I didn't expect this medicine to help me because I have been disappointed so often I had lost faith in everything.

"I have been sick for sometime, not sick enough to go to bed, but just felt miserable all the time. I had headaches and my stomach was always out of order. I had no strength and was dreadfully nervous. I was always thinking something terrible was about to happen, and tossed about at night instead of sleeping. I did not feel refreshed in the morning but was tired before I began the day.

"I kept reading about this Tona Vita, but thought it was like all the rest and would not get it. One day I read of a man who said it had done great things for him, and he described his case exactly like mine. I finally decided to try it, and began to improve from the first dose. I think this is the best medicine in the world and gladly recommend it to any one afflicted as I was."

Many statements similar to the above are being received at various Boston drug stores. These statements are made by people who have been afflicted with the modern complaint, nervous debility. Half of the people who work at high pressure six days out of the week and who are too nervous to relax properly on the seventh, are afflicted with this complaint.

Such people have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, uneasy sleep, little ambition and become easily exhausted. They suffer with timidity, have no initiative, are droopy and listless and have not enough good rich blood in their veins to make them capable or self-reliant. Their nerves are impoverished to such an extent that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at different times. Their real trouble is debility, produced by the strain of the life they are forced to lead. There is not much of this ailment among country people, as their life is freer and permits them to observe a more rational mode of living.

Tona Vita will positively remove this condition in a comparatively short time. It is on sale at all leading drug stores in Boston.

RILEY'S COLUMN

JAKE STAHL hanged two baseball games at his belt when he deftly inserted Joe Wood into the first of the St. Louis series and thereby pried off the first game before anybody had a chance to object. Since Davis set the Athletics back at Philadelphia while Stahl was squeezing up a few points in Boston, the trick was productive.

* * *

IT'S a wise old baseball saw that a game from St. Louis counts as much as a game from Philadelphia and, by the same token, two games from St. Louis must count twice as much. Joe Wood has learned the lesson of experience and has gotten up trying for no-hit-no-run games, so he just jobbed them over yesterday, laughed himself almost to death as the Browns fell by the wayside after the first inning, and will be ready to give 'em another Thursday—in fact, he'd slip 'em one today, if ordered to do it.

* * *

"WHENN we have a game won, we let down," said Wood in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. A new remark for the young Red Sox marvel. Wood never used to let down, win or lose. He's grown older now—he's past twenty-two, and he's saving up the games. By which stroke of conservatism, you'll see Wood a second Christy Mathewson, and he'll likely keep close to his record of today—seventeen games won and only four lost.

* * *

SPEAKING of Wood's own story in the Sunday AMERICAN, the writer recently asked James R. McAleer, president of the Red Sox, to tell "how the Red Sox nailed down first place." "I don't know," said "Jeems." "Those are the fellows who did it"—pointing to the diamond—"you ask 'em. They're the boys who did it and they're entitled to all the credit."

* * *

IT WAS as hard to squeeze a story out of Joe Wood as it is for the Browns to squeeze a hit out of him, and the rest of the Red Sox bunch are like Wood. They're playing the old-fashioned game of hit-'em-out baseball, hustling all of the time and as enthusiastic as a bunch of schoolboys.

"Success is what has made that team so hard to beat," said Connie Mack after he watched them pocket four out of six from the world champions when the Athletics were going their fastest. "I think we ought to beat them but sometimes we can't."

* * *

GOING back to yesterday's opener with the Browns. Shotten slipped one past Larry Gardner in the first inning, Jantzen moved him along with a lucky single to right and he scored on a fast drive to the box when Wood was thrown off his stride after delivering a fast one. That was the only run St. Louis made, and only four of them passed first base after that. Wood holds the Browns to the hollow of his hand.

* * *

THE RED SOX are has grown speedier than ever with men on bases. With two of the quickest plays ever seen on a Red Sox diamond, he and Wagner slipped Jantzen, of second in the first and Kutina in the same place in the fourth. Neither was run far enough off the base to attract the attention of the crowd. They were the only two the Red Sox pair went after, and they were caught like a flash.

* * *

JUST to show how completely Wood is playing the game nowadays here are a few more incidents. The only Brownie who ever bothers him is Shotten. Wood has usually trimmed the Browns by sending up singlers. Yesterday he changed his style and fed them slow ones. With Shotten he pitched differently. He "smoked" two across in the third and they lobbed up a slow one, which Shotten rolled along to Yerkes for an easy out.

* * *

EIGHT BROWNIES were caught for three strikes—mostly on slow curves, which is something new for Wood—and usually the third one was "called," not slammed at. In one case the Brownie gave a sign of disgust before departing for the bench, and the frequency of their ill humor finally had the crowd in an uproar.

* * *

WOOD pulled off an unintentional assist in the ninth. A drive from Pratt's bat lifted him in the knee, caromed off into Gardner's territory and Larry milled Pratt at first by a clever pick-up and throw. Wood was credited with an assist, because if he had not unconsciously stopped the ball it would have bounded into center for a single.

* * *

WOOD himself hit the first ball pitched in the second inning against the left field scoreboard. It was a hot day and, under instruction, he merely aimed to first on what could have been an easy two-bagger. But once "on," he couldn't resist the temptation to try to squeeze to third on Hooper's bunt and was cut down, Laporte to Austin, after a long sprint.

* * *

THE SOX put over eleven hits, and Larry Gardner was credited with three of them, a triple and two singles. Also he was safe at first on Laporte's error on his fourth attempt. Harry Hooper produced a clean single and one of his famous bunts, while "Duffy" Lewis, who is hitting them now, smashed out a single, a double and a sacrifice fly.

* * *

"HEINIE" WAGNER gave a fine example of carrying out instructions to the letter. With Stahl on first and three runs in the first, a hit and run play was signaled. Jake Stahl was merely trying out, for he "pitched out" to Wagner. But since Jake Stahl was already scooting for second, Wagner had to go through with the play. So he hurled his bat at the ball, connecting as Pratt was drawing out of position running to catch Stahl at second, the ball dropped just out of his reach and Jake advanced to third. It was one of the luckiest hits ever recorded in a "hit-and-run" game. It showed how quick Wagner thinks and what a clear eye he has.

WORLD SERIES GAMES ALL FREE

There all look alike to the Red Sox. It doesn't matter much these days whether it's the Senators, Tigers, White Sox or even the dreaded Athletics—the Speed Boys' "sticks" will pole out the winning runs.

And there isn't going to be any "crack" in the team either. They're out for scalps this year and the loyal New England rooters will do their share to help the Sox to get them.

All of which is merely an introduction to the Baseball Contest. It merely shows the conditions that prevail.

The twenty most popular baseball fans in New England will see the World's Championship games, no matter where they are played, whether it is in Boston, Chicago, Detroit or Washington.

Contest Is Open to All.

These fans are going to be chosen by their friends in a voting contest. The ballots are coupons which will appear each day in the Boston AMERICAN. Daily coupons will be good for two votes apiece and Sunday coupons will be good for ten votes apiece.

The only way to get these coupons is to get the Boston AMERICAN and clip them and have your friends all along the line do the same.

The twenty fans who get the most votes will win the trips.

Contest Opens Saturday.

The contest is open to everyone in New England, men, women, boys and girls—everyone is eligible.

The way to enter is to fill out the nomination blank which will be found on another page of today's AMERICAN and mail it to the Contest Editor.

This is the time to do it.

There's a reason!

The reason is this: Anyone who is nominated before the contest opens on next Saturday, July 13, will receive an extra special credit of 1,000 votes.

If you enter the contest on or after next Saturday, July 13, you will not get this credit.

Storbeck's Seconds Throw Up the Sponge

NEW YORK, July 9.—Fred Storbeck, the South African heavyweight, went down to defeat before Jim Stewart of Brooklyn in what was scheduled to be a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Storbeck's manager threw up the sponge in the sixth round to save his man from further punishment and Storbeck had received a severe beating.

Storbeck had the better of the first round, but after that the fight was Stewart's. The Brooklyn man got to Storbeck with heart and stomach punches and right and left swings to the head and fought his man to a standstill. Storbeck was knocked down three times in the fifth round.

JOHNSON AND PALZER MAY MEET IN GOTHAM

CHICAGO, July 9.—Al Palzer, lowa heavyweight, will meet Jack Johnson in a ten-round go in New York, if same Gotham promoter will step forward with "the price" for Johnson. Palzer talked the matter over with the colored champion here in a brief stop-off on his way to New York. Johnson wants $30,000 for his end, and both fighters believe the card would be big enough to attract Eastern fight promoters. They expect to find a man who will stage the fight.

Notes of the Links

John F. Morrill of Wright and Ditson, a member of the Wollaston Golf Club, has long been known as one of the oldest and most enthusiastic of the game in this State. Since the Fourth of July, however, he has added another distinction to his credit. Morrill's young Golfer he is Grandfather. His grandson is the child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Forrest, was formerly "Carrie" Morrill of Bear Burn, one of the most able golfers of her sex in the State. Mr. Morrill, despite the fact that he has become "Grandpa" is still at the game with an even added zest.

Francis Oulmet, whose name is synonymous with "Winner of the Tournament," and "Home Grass," played at the Framingham Country Club a few days ago and placed a new amateur record on the books for two rounds of the nine-hole course. In the morning he played a 77 and in the afternoon turned in a 75, 38 out for each period. His card follows:

Out	5	5	4	5	4	5	3	4	3	38
In	5	4	5	5	3	4	4	3	4	37

It is a noticeable feature of the Metropolitan and Philadelphia open championships, that entries from outside the State are allowed and invited, while the recent Massachusetts open just finished at the Oakley Club was for Bay State professionals only. Are the money prizes here too small, or the ruling powers too exclusive to allow New York and other professionals to enter our open championship?

Tom McNamara, the well-known Boston professional, has gone to New York, preparatory to playing in the Metropolitan open championship, which will be held at the links of the Apawamis Club on Friday, tomorrow and Thursday. In all probability he will go to open championship of the Philadelphia Golf Association at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club on Friday. No professional in this vicinity, excepting, perhaps Alex Ross, has a better opportunity to get in the money than Tommy Mac, and if he is on his game, the best of the New York "pros" will have to go some.

PILGRIMS IN DOUBLE HEADER

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—The Boston Pilgrims and the Cardinals mix in a double-header today, and if the Beaneaters should happen to win, the cellar championship will be very much in doubt.

Judging from yesterday's contest, the Boston team has a little something on the local chaps, and it would not be surprising if they should force the local prides into the last position before many days have the last position before many days have passed.

It took ten innings yesterday to decide the winner in the "booby" championship fight. Thanks to the excellent fielding of Bill Sweeney, who dug several low throws from Kling out of the dirt and put them on the runner for outs, the Pilgrims coming out on the long end of the score.

Rib Perdue, also came in for a good share of the glory. He signalized his return to the club by pitching a swell article of ball and had the best ground guessing from start to finish. Then little Mr. O'Rourke had a great deal to say about the victory, for it was his single in the tenth that sent Devlin across the pan with the winning run, after the ex-Giant had tripled.

The Pilgrims should have won the game in the ninth inning but for a piece of rabbitry on the part of Umpire Brennan. Jackson had doubled when Titus sung a hit down the left field foul line.

The smash would have scored Jackson, but Brennan said it was a foul. For this he was hooted liberally by the St. Louis fans who hated to see the veteran robbed of his just dues.

The drive was a hard hit, at least a foot inside the foul line, as it dug up a piece of turf where it struck. Titus then gave Oakes a hard chance and was retired.

Knights of Pythias to Hold Field Day

The Pythian Field Day Association of Massachusetts will hold their second annual field day and games at Spring Grove, Wellesley, on Saturday, July 20, at 2:30 P. M.

In addition to the large list of sports open to members of the Knights of Pythias and their families, there will be a 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, three-mile run, running high and running broad jumps, open to all registered amateurs.

Entry blanks can be obtained by applying to D. H. Cadman, No. 117 Summer street, Medford, with whom the entries close July 18.

REGAINS TENNIS TITLE.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 9.—A. F. Wilding regained the world's lawn tennis championship of Great Britain today by defeating A. W. Gore, the English player, by three sets to love. The score was 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

Pennant Days at Fenway Park

Fans Have Flag Already Raised

Back among the old folks once again, with a firm grip on the first position in the American League race and bright visions of the 1912 pennant flying from the masthead in centre field at Fenway Park next season, the Boston Red Sox rooters are giving Jake Stahl and his Speed Boys a reception that outdoes that accorded Jimmy Collins and his team when they hauled the flag for Boston back in 1904 and 1905.

On paper, or from the diamond dopsters' standpoint, there is nothing to do but nail the banner to the mast, but there is many a slip twixt July and October.

Stahl, however, has beaten the best of them and the recent series with Connie Mack's world champions, while the hardest since the opening of the season, but given the fans added hope that Boston will be the scene of the world series games.

St. Louis First on List.

The Red Sox have first place in the standing and in the hearts of the New England ball fans but they must play some speedy ball to keep at the top of the pile. They have been right through the list, however, and if they can repeat their past performances it will be easy sailing.

The Red Sox are home for a long stay and will have several of the big teams here for series. St. Louis is the first on the list. The Browns have yet to win a game from Boston but now that they are out of the cellar position, Stovall is sure that he will be able to take at least one of the series.

Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland will be next in line and of these, Chicago is looked upon as the only team that will be able to give the Sox any kind of a battle.

In the Western trip Detroit managed to get away with an even break but the Sox are confident that they will be able to get a cleanup this time.

White Sox Here for Four Games.

After Detroit leaves town, Jimmy Callahan and his bunch of scrappy White Sox from the Windy City hit town for a four-game series. The Sox can get no worse than an even break from their white hose brethren but, taking it all in all, they should be able to get away with the whole series.

Ed Walsh, one time the terror of the Red Sox, is just as easy a mark as any other pitcher now. All the boys have found him and the Walsh hoodoo is banished.

Twinkle-toed Walsh, Benz, the big butcher boy, will prove the hardest for the Red Sox to beat. This youngster has been pitching some wonderful ball since the season opened but the Sox have no fears and are confident of beating him.

Cleveland will be the last of the Western teams to get in. This is the one team that the Sox are out to beat. On the Western trip, Harry Davis' team will come out of four games by a little baseball luck and the Sox will try their hardest to clean up the Forest City bunch.

In this series the fans will be able to draw lines on "Tris" Speaker of the Red Sox and Joe Jackson, who is cutting capers in the American League batting race.

At present the Sox has a slight lead over the big Texan but "Tris" leads in the number of hits made and run-getting. Jackson shines at stealing bases but "Tris" also has a lead over him in this department.

The Sox will play their last game of the present stay on July 25 against Cleveland. Then both teams will depart and open up in the Forest City the following day.

All the Boston boys are confident of winning the flag. There is not a man on the team who is not playing his best and playing together.

Stahl fears some of his stars may get injured but he has a very good secondary defense and in case one of the men is crippled there is always a man to take his place.

Strong Second String.

Hugh Bradley has proved to be a worthy understudy for the Red Sox manager and although not as good a hitter is a very clever fielder.

Stahl, recently acquired from Cleveland, could fill in either at second, shortstop or third should either Wagner, Gardner or Yerkes get laid up. Stahl also has Clyde Engle and Marty Krug to fall back on.

Krug is coming around again after his injury which he received on the Western trip and will be able to get in the game at a minute's notice.

In the few games that he played, Krug caused no end of comment, along the American League circuit. He batted the ball like a veteran and fielded in faultless style.

CHANGE DATE OF RIFLE TOURNAMENT

The eighth annual tournament of the New England Military Rifle Association, which was scheduled to take place during the fourth week in August, has been changed to the third week, the meeting opening on Aug. 19. The change was made necessary by the National Rifle Association matches being held for the week of Aug. 26 to 31.

This is said to be the most important tournament ever planned by the New England Association.

Police Protection For Ty Cobb Today

NEW YORK, July 9.—When Ty Cobb appears in a Detroit uniform at the American league park today, half a dozen detectives in plain clothes will sit in the grand stand to protect him from possible harm.

Cobb, it will be remembered, assaulted a spectator when the Detroits were here in May, and was suspended for ten days by President Johnson, whose ruling prompted a strike by the Detroit players lasting just three days. The person who was subjected to a mauling at the hands of Cobb, it is said to have threatened the star marvel with arrest and prosecution, while members of the Sirocco gang also have vowed vengeance in view of their friendly relations with Cobb's tormentor.

It is learned, however, that Cobb may not be arrested after all, and that a reconciliation of some kind may be effected before the Detroits leave here Thursday night. Furthermore, the officials of New York Americans will issue orders today to bar members of the Sirocco club from the park and will instruct the sleuths on duty at the grounds to eject and arrest all persons who may try to annoy Cobb or any other member of the visiting team.

CREDIT DUE TO FORMER STARS

By DAMON RUNYON.

Old-time fans seem to feel that there is a modern-day tendency to discredit the work of the baseball stars of the long ago. The arguments over Rube Marquard have probably been largely responsible for the development of this feeling. As a matter of fact, the old-timers of the game are entitled to much more credit for their accomplishments than their modern successors, just as the pioneers who blazed the paths through the wilderness are entitled to more credit than the descendants who live in peace and quiet as a result of the achievements of their forebears.

It would be idle to say that Marquard's record approaches that of Charley Radbourne, when it is considered that Radbourne made his run of eighteen straight victories practically on consecutive days. The style of pitching, or the distance pitched, makes no particular difference—the physical and mental effort was there. It would be equally idle to contend that any modern day ball club will match the record of the Red Stockings of '70 and '79. The base running of the Lathams and Hamiltons and Stoveys of the 19-zone ball will probably never be touched by modern day players.

Certain it is, too, that not many of the catchers of today would stand the gaff that the old-timers took—catching day in and day out without gloves or protectors.

Rube Marquard is a marvelous pitcher and he has sung up a record that will probably stand for many years to come; he will probably be remembered for his work as long as they play baseball, but so, too, will the Chicksons and the Radbournes, and there be sufficient glory for all in the eras they represent.

But as for belittling the work of the old-time stars—NO. I wasn't there to see them, but I've been told, and I believe.

Horse Racing Again On New Jersey Tracks

NEW YORK, July 9.—A well defined rumor is in circulation that under certain conditions Inwood Park, Long Branch, may provide racing two days a week for the rest of the Summer.

At the track this report is on the tip of the tongue, but nobody in authority will confirm it.

That the tip has gone out, however, seemed certain, inasmuch as several prominent bookmakers came all the way from Canada to look over the ground.

The constitutional amendment passed in New Jersey in 1907 wiping out racing in the cities this Fall and many residents of Long Branch are now using their influence to make a strong effort to restore racing. The passing of Monmouth Park, they declare, was a blow from which the famous resort has never recovered.

SPEEDY CREW IS OUT OF REGATTA

NEW YORK, July 9.—At the big regatta on the Schuylkill the Nonpareil Club double—Frank Crowley, bow, and Charles Schwartz, stroke—met with an accident that illustrates the misfortunes that sometimes pursue oarsmen. They had trained faithfully for a month for the race.

They were rowing to the starting line and were only a quarter of a mile from it when the shell struck a rock that the water barely covered. A gaping hole was torn in the bow, making it impossible for them to compete. Schwartz and Crowley will probably row in Peoria for the double championship of the United States and Canada. They won handily in the Harlem regatta.

The defeat of Frederick Shepheard, one of the best scullers New York has produced, in the senior singles, at Philadelphia, in which he finished fourth, caused a lot of gloom among his followers. Shepheard was not dismayed. It was his first race since the championships of last year. He rowed in the regatta, he said afterward, more to "get a line" on the men he may meet in the national than anything else. He also wanted to "feel himself out" to determine whether he is as fast as he was before he and Fred Pressel lost the double championship. While he failed to win, he said he has demonstrated to him that by the time the national comes around he will be as fast as he ever was.

The Ravenswood Boat Club gave a little celebration to Thomas Rooney and his partner in the intermediate double sculls when they arrived at the clubhouse in Long Island from Philadelphia. They won in the doubles, and Rooney captured the intermediate single also in a creditable race. He finished five lengths ahead of the second man. Rooney won his junior race in the Harlem River regatta in handy fashion. The Ravenswood club members think Rooney is a second Titus in the rowing game.

WILKES-BARRE GETS ROCK.

Roy Rock, shortstop on the Providence team for nearly ten years, who was recently unconditionally released, has signed up with the Wilkes-Barre team of the New York State League. It is understood that he has secured a very fine contract which does not have a reserve clause and gives him the opportunity of going anywhere he pleases at the end of the season. The document has been signed by Manager Comer of the Wilkes-Barre team.

AT LAST

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Chicago rang with maddening cheers
When Marquard lost a game.
They had to rope the stockyard steers
When Marquard lost a game.
Some men were lunatics in Chi.,
Like Michigan called mountain high.
And Murphy almost said "I'll buy!"
When Marquard lost a game.

A shadow fell across New York
When Marquard lost a game.
A shadow dark as minstrel cork
When Marquard lost a game.
The New York fans grew still as mice,
The Giants' nascot fainted twice
And had to pack his head in ice
When Marquard lost a game!

"Ad" Men Open Golf Title Tournament

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., July 9.—The annual championship tournament of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests was officially started today, when R. H. Wilson stepped to the tee and drove off the first ball far across the field.

Seventy boys from the South Bay Union, who were spread over a wide area, made a scramble for the precious pellet, and ten-dollar prize was hung up for the recovery of it.

After this formality had been gone through with, the first match of the day was started.

Some excellent scores were turned in yesterday in the handicap best ball foursome, which was held as a preliminary to today's big event. There were seventy golfers on hand for the play.

F. M. Sherman, the Vice-President's son, who is the present champion of the association, was the individual star of the day with his rounds of 73 and 75. Playing with Charles Prestbrey, Foxhills, a best ball of 73 was made. Marshall Whitaich, a noted Metropolitan golfer, scored a 75, and with A. K. Oliver, Allegheny, tied with Sherman and Presbrey for low gross at 70 in the best ball event.

The tournament continues throughout the week, with the qualification in the women's and men's divisions coming today and the finals on Friday. There will also be special contests, as well as new division, made up of those falling out of the regular contests, the tournament winding up with an eighteen-hole medal handicap on Saturday, open to all.

Little Bobbie's Pa

HE FOILS A HIGHBROW

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"HUSBAND, sed Ma the other nite, you remember you & me was speeking about littel Bobbie having sumthing to do during the Summer months, sow he is having his vacashun, so that he wuddent let his mind git dull or let himself git lazy.

I reemember, sed Pa. You wanted me to git him a job down on the paper as a office boy. & I put the crusher on the idee, sed Pa. Well, what do you pure mind now?

I have thought of a other skeem, sed Ma. You know that Mister Upton that jest cum here from San Francisco, he is going to start a skool for Jurnalists.

What? sed Pa, another skool for Jurnalists. It seems to me, sed Pa, that there is moer skools for jurnalists than there is jurnalists themselves. In the good old days, sed Pa, wen I was jerning to be a newspaper man, I never went to a skool. I jest went into a newspaper office & took the good with the bad, mostly kicks & cuffs & other well meant advice. I started at ten dollars a week, sed Pa, & every time Mannen was bad & they dident have the munny to pay me they used to stand me off or fine me six dollars for missing a scoop. It was very heavy going, sed Pa, but I managed to git thru it sum way & soon manadged to make a reglar living jurnalising, & I think that is the only way to lern to be a riter.

But this Mister Upton is a very smart man, sed Ma, he must be. His wife sed he was one of the smartest men on the coast.

Well, sed Pa, if his wife sed so it must be moer than true. Usually she things a wide says about her husband are mostly knocks, if she gives him a boost it must be true. But I still stick to the thing I sed first. Speeking as a old & experienced newspaper man, I do not beelieve that any boy, however bright, can lern to be a newspaper man in a skool for jurnalism.

Jest then Mister Upton calm in. Ma interduced him to Pa, & he showed Pa a littel book with he had jest got up that he said all their plans for he new skool for jurnalists.

I am extreemly desirous of having your young son enter my skool & talk the jurnalistic course, he todld Pa. You son has a splendid head, & he has the keen, alert eyes of a born reporter.

He got them keen alert eyes watching for me to cum beam late at nite, sed Pa. What other signs of promise do you detect about him?

He has thin, nervus hands, sed Mister Upton. Thin, nervus hands are always to be found on riters, that is, on born riters.

Then Pa looked at Mister Upton kind of funny. Pa has fat hands & they aren't very nervus, so he dident like what Mister Upton sed about nervus, thin hands. I dount see whare thin, nervus hands is a sign of geenius, sed Pa. Monkeys have thin, nervus hands.

Let me tell you sumthing, sed Pa. I have been a newspaper man for many yeers, & they say I am a fairly good one. If I was ever to teech a lot of boys to be newspaper men, this is the course of study I wud lay out for them:

1. How to pleese the editors.

2. How to git a order for advance munny from the editors.

3. How to explain your absence to the editors.

4. How to git a editor to talk you out to lunch.

That is all, sed Pa, but I dount want littel Bobbie to be a newspaper man anyway. Goodnite, Mister Upton.

One Too Many

A story is told of a well-known divine who was visiting a prison, when he came across a prisoner whose features were familiar to him.

"What brought you here, my poor fellow?" he asked.

"You mean, me to a woman a little while ago, sir," the prisoner replied, with a sigh.

"Ah, I see," said the parson. "And she was dominating and extravagant, and she drove you to desperate courses, eh?"

"No," said the prisoner; "my other wife turned up."

FAMOUS IN A DAY FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

A Free Prescription That Does Its Work Over Night—You Can Prepare It at Your Own Home.

"It's my own discovery, and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," answers Miss Grace Benson, when her friends asked her about the marvelous change in the appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you will take my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it! It did it all this in a night.

"It affords me a world of pleasure to tell anyone else just how such remarkable results were brought about. I give you absolutely free, the identical prescription which has removed every defect from my hands and arms. You can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which can be prepared at your own home, is as follows:

"Go to any drug store and buy an ounce bottle of Kuhn Compound. Pour the entire bottle of Kuhn Compound into a 2 ounce bottle, add quarter ounce of witch hazel and fill with water. Shake well at home, then you know that it is the genuine article. Apply night and morning. The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin velvety soft, removes all discolorations such as tan, sun freckles, redness and coarse pores, roughness and wrinkles, and, in fact, every blemish on the hands and arms disappears. It also produces a marvelous softness on the neck and shoulders.

"If the neck is discolored from being exposed to the sun or from wearing high collars, this prescription will immediately restore that condition. No matter how rough and unsightly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation in twelve hours at the most. Thousands of women are using this prescription with just the same results that I have had."

Hot Weather Cooking

How the Modern Housewife Can Save Energy and Health

By ELIZABETH RATHBONE

HOT weather has brought the paper bag much in evidence in the kitchen.

No one likes to wash dishes at any time, but in Summer the greasy pot and kettle presents such an objection that many a cook would rather go without eating warm food than to have to wash up afterward.

With paper bag cookery there are no cooking dishes to wash, and this fact makes the new way of cooking especially popular in hot weather.

Last Autumn Soyer, the late chef of the famous Brook's Club in England, announced that he had developed a new method of cooking. Instead of using crocks and pans, he put the food to be cooked in a paper bag, sealed it, placed the bag in the oven, and in due time brought forth an exquisitely prepared viand.

First he was laughed at, then the housewife with a taste for experiments tried the new fangled paper bag cookery with some success.

Now that hot weather has come there is another reason for using paper bags instead of pans and dishes to cook with.

An Energy Saver

Paper bag cookery is exceedingly simple, and the cook who only has one of two people to prepare for finds this method a great saving in time, material and energy.

In cooking with the paper bag there is no smell and no waste. Portions for one or two people can be put into the bag and cooked without loss by evaporation.

A great many people have thought that any kind of a paper bag would do, and have tried cooking in paper bags which once contained sugar or coffee. But the results were quite disastrous. The bag burned up or the food spilled out, and there was a distinctly papery taste to anything that was left.

You must have a bag made of materials that are absolutely pure and odorless, and it must be a bag that doesn't leak. Choose your bag according to the amount of food to be cooked, and don't put a small quantity into a big bag. The bag should be placed in the oven. Any oven will do. If you are using a gas stove don't place the bag near the gas jet. It should be at least a couple of inches from this flame.

After the food to be cooked is put into the bag, seal the bag by turning in the top and fastening with the ordinary clips used for typewriting paper, etc. A great many women use pins. Occasionally the pin is served with the food, so it's better to use clips. They can be saved and used again and again. If you want to know when the food is done, open your oven door and prick your bag open with a needle, or touch it to see if it is soft, according to the food cooked. As a matter of fact, it is not very easy to overcook the food, and you are much more likely to have things underdone.

Preparing Eggs

If you want to save time and labor and dishwashing, by cooking with paper bags, begin with something very simple, something that can't very well spoil. Take potatoes, for instance. If you use new potatoes, cut them in half; if old potatoes are used, quarter them after peeling. Put sufficient potatoes for the number of persons, placing the potatoes in the paper bag; add a teaspoonful of cold water for each portion, add a little salt and some chopped parsley. Fasten the bag carefully with two or three wire clips; then put it in the oven, laying it on the broiler; if the oven is hot it ought to take about thirty minutes to cook the potatoes.

Except when you are using water in a paper bag, the bag should be well buttered inside. An excellent way of preparing eggs in a paper bag is made like this: First butter the bag well; then pour into it about three tablespoonsful of thick sauce or the thick juice of canned tomatoes flavored with salt and pepper. Add a small lump of butter, seal the bag, which should be the smallest size for one person only, and cook about ten minutes. Now cut a hole in the centre of the bag and break into the hole one entire egg. Put the bag back in the oven and cook for about three minutes. Serve in the bag. This makes a nice luncheon dish, and it is certainly simple to prepare. Fill as many individual bags as there are people.

Until you have become expert at paper bag cooking, don't try to cook soup, macaroni or any of the large vegetables, like cabbage, cauliflower, artichokes, etc. Experiment on simpler dishes, one of which is Irish stew. For three people cut up two pounds of mutton into small squares. Pepper and salt thoroughly; peel several large onions, chop them with a few carrots, a few string beans or some odds and ends of celery. Add several small potatoes, peeled and cut in half, and a bunch of herbs. Put all this in a bag with a tumbler of cold water; seal the bag and lay it on the broiler with the seam side up. The seam side must always be uppermost. Cook the stew for about forty minutes.

Odds and Ends

The paper bag is an excellent way of cooking up odds and ends and left-overs. Left-over food, especially meat or fish, when served a second time, is usually so dry that it is not appetizing. By cooking it in the paper bag the juice is not allowed to evaporate and if a little sauce is added to it the meat or fish is presented with a delicious flavor. When you have any left-over fish, place it in a well-buttered bag, add a little sweet cream, some chopped herbs, seasoning with pepper and salt. If desired, a little grated cheese should only take about ten minutes to cook even if the oven is sufficiently hot.

Peas are cooked in paper bags by adding a pint of water to every pint of peas, a few leaves of lettuce are very nice cooked with peas, and just before serving add a little butter and sugar. Cook in a paper bag for forty-five minutes.

Kitchen Wrinkles

An excellent dye for lace curtains can be obtained in an economical manner by storing up the remains of each day's brewing from the teapot in a closed jar. After having accumulated sufficient old tea leaves and liquid also, strain through a fine sieve; then add the liquid to the starch in quantity according to the particular shade required, wring and hang out quickly in the usual way. Where dry a nice ecru shade will be the result.

The richer a cake the more easily is it spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and taken a rich brown color, the heat should be lessened to what cooks call "a cooking heat," and the cake should be kept in this moderate heat until a pointed knife or skewer stuck in the middle of the cake can be withdrawn without uncooked paste sticking to it.

A capital cleanser for varnished and stained woodwork is that of tea water. This may be made by pouring boiling water on spent tea leaves and straining the liquid afterwards through a cloth of muslin. The tea water loosens the dirt quickly.

Instead of lining the drawers in the bedroom with newspaper, give them a coat of good white paint. This is much nicer than paper, and when cleaning is necessary all that is required is to wipe them out with a damp cloth.

To keep your lace door panels from shrinking, after removing them from the rods, wash the glass. Then wash and starch the lace, slip in the rods immediately and replace the panel on the door. Care should be observed to pull the lace straight, tacking down the sides if necessary to stretch the panel. Allow it to dry in position.

A simple and excellent way to remove dirty marks from a mackintosh is to cut a raw potato in slices and rub it well on the marks. It will also remove mud stains from dress skirts, children's coats, and gentlemen's trousers.

To save incandescent mantles, when lighting turn on the gas for a few seconds, then hold the match one inch above the chimney. It is through applying the match too quickly that so many mantles are destroyed.

Large beetroots can be cut in two or more pieces and boiled in a small saucepan without losing their rich, red color, if they are placed in fast boiling water, and kept over a very hot fire until they are perfectly soft.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

THE TAX GIRL'S PAY

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE home of Lysander John Appleton is conducted on the pay-as-you-enter plan.

Every evening when he reaches the door some one meets him with outstretched hand—not to take his hand, but to take what is in it.

Sometimes it is the butcher. Sometimes it is the baker. Occasionally it is the gas man, the modern substitute for the candlestick maker.

But more often it is to meet some tax that other girls have put on Daysey Mayme.

One of Daysey Mayme's friends announces her engagement. All her girl friends must come across with engagement gifts, kitchen showers and wedding gifts.

When babies come, every baby must be remembered, and as the babies grow up they accumulate, with teeth and hair and wisdom and foolishness, a lot of anniversaries.

But it is always something, for girls pay a tax on friendship that is greater than the tax Father pays on his land.

Daysey Mayme's Bright Idea

"It seems to me," grumbled Lysander John the last time an assessment was made, "that you ought to get something back for all this you pay."

Daysey Mayme looked at him thoughtfully. His protest had put an idea in her head; an idea warm enough to make her hair curl.

She would get something back! She would become engaged herself!

But to whom? She ran over a list of the young men she knew and dismissed all of them. Not one had a social or financial rating that would call for chests of silver and cut glass.

They were all the kind for whose bridesheet her friends would select such gifts as hack towels.

She would be a duchess!

True, no dukes were lying around loose with whom she had speaking acquaintance, and all the dukes she read about in the Sunday papers were mariaged to some girl, or foreclosed.

She would invent a duke of her own!

Which explains how it happened the next morning that Lysander John had the shock of his life.

He had begun on his egg, after his usual morning gamble whether the interior was like soup or asphalt paving.

"I won't be shocked to-day, himself," when he cracked the shell and found macadam inside.

Shook the Paper

Then he picked up the morning paper. A glaring headline on the front page over the pictures of a fine looking man, and Daysey Mayme caught his eye.

"American Girl Won a Title. The Engagement Announced of Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton, Daughter of Kin Commissioner General Lysander John Appleton, to the Duke De La Champleaux."

Lysander John gasped. He shook the paper at his daughter in speechless bewilderment. He stuttered. He glared. He tried to speak. He couldn't.

Then he slid off his chair to the floor and knew no more.

The Modern Attila

An Insect "Scourge of God" More Terrible Than the King of the Huns

By Garrett P. Serviss

EVERY day the reasons for making war upon the house fly increase in number. One of the latest indictments against this disseminator of infection and death is that he carries about with him the germs of infantile paralysis, as well as those of typhoid, consumption and other communicable diseases. It is now believed, says Dr. Thomas D. Wood, in Good Housekeeping Magazine for July, that germs of infantile paralysis may live for forty-eight hours, at least, in the body of a fly.

This insect Attila, whose march is more destructive than that of the scourge of dying Rome, who declared that grass could not grow where his horse had passed, does not appear in his true character, when we see him quietly sitting in a window, caressing his sheeny wings with his hind legs or polishing his head while he fondles the back of his neck, as if he were taking a sunbath and hugely enjoying it. His diminutive body covers too small an area in the field of the eye to enable us to see its formidable details. We must get optically near him, with the aid of a microscope, in order to see him as he really is.

Then, when all his dimensions are magnified many diameters, we behold a monster as terrifying as any of the dinosaurs of geological antiquity. Look, in the photograph above, at the hairy body, covered with sharp subsoil at the powerful legs, with their spreading spikes at the joints! The foul, predatory mouth, with its gigantic hemispheres filled with the glittering facets of the great compound eyes, the sword extensory organs of vision in the animal kingdom; at the big, hairy club like, extensible feeler, with which the unclean beast explores the sources of its poisonous diet; and finally at the strong wings, coolly spread for instant, vertiginous flight, which enables it to carry the germs of disease that it has absorbed with express train speed to its destination.

Gibbon has described the historical At-tila as exhibiting the "genuine deformity of a modern Calmuck, with a large head, a swarthy complexion * * * and a custom of fiercely rolling his eyes, as if he wished to enjoy the terror which he inspired." The description is not inapplicable to this Attila of the insect world.

If, after all that has been said by medical science, you yet have any doubt about the duty of destroying every fly you meet, then consider, for a moment, these unquestionable facts. One fly as many as 6,000,000 disease-sending bacteria have been found, and in a recent experiment the average number of germs found on the bodies of each of 414 flies was 1,250,000.* Every female fly that is allowed to live may become, in the course of the Summer, the progenitor of 8,000,000 descendants that normally survive as carriers of disease!

Keep your house clear of flies, and above all keep them out of the kitchen and the pantry. Destroy, or disinfect, or cover with screens every garbage pail or pit and every heap of refuse in which they can breed. If, after all, is not so very difficult to get rid of flies. It costs something, in time and money, but there could be no better way to expend either. Because SOME flies manage to get inside your screens, don't conclude the defense is on that account. The town is not taken when a few of the enemy have got over the walls. Keep the bulk of their forces outside, and you can deal with the few that get in.

But defense by screens is not enough. Go out and meet the enemy on his own ground. Remember Cato's watchword, "DELENDA EST CARTHAGO," i. e., "Carthage must be destroyed!" The great Roman saw that his country could never be safe as long as Carthage was permitted to survive. Victories were not enough; to kill a few hundred thousand Carthaginians would not save Rome; Carthage must be EXTERMINATED, and exterminated she was. The war against flies, like Rome's war against the Carthaginians, is a struggle for life. We know it; we know where he lives, his habits, and where he recruits his forces. Every stable, every refuse heap and every garbage pail is a Carthage, swarming with enemies, and preparing new armies of invasion. DELENDA EST CARTHAGO!

You will find in Good Housekeeping Magazine directions for driving flies from the outside of your screen doors, so that they will not even attempt the assault of your defenses. And you may gather a vivid impression of the critical necessity of eternal vigilance in this matter from reading this warning of Dr. Wood's: "Let everything that goes into any ones mouth—spoons, tumblers and Baby's nursing bottles—BE SCALDED after a fly has walked on them!"

MOTHERHOOD SUGGESTIONS

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will permit it going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organs.

In many homes once childless there are now children because the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

Every women ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

A Mysterious Disappearance

One of the Greatest Detective Stories Ever Written

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

PART II.—(Continued)

Copyright, 1905, by Edward J. Clode

THERE could be no doubt that it was a genuine production. The condition of the ink bore out the correctness of the date, and the fact that the notepaper and envelope were not of Continental style was not very material.

It did not appear to have been enclosed in another envelope, as the writer implied, for the purpose of being reposted in London. Rather did the slightly frayed edges give rise to the assumption that it had been carried in some one's pocket before posting. But this theory was vague and undemonstrable.

The handwriting was Lady Dyke's; the style, allowing for the strange conditions under which it was written, was hers; yet Bruce did not believe in it.

Nothing could shake his faith in the one solid, concrete certainty that stood out from the maze of contradictions and mystery—Lady Dyke was dead, and buried in a pauper's grave at Putney.

At last, wearied with thought and theorizing, he went to bed; but Smith sat up late to regale his partner with the full, true and particular narrative of the strange great lookin' as though he would like to murder Mr White"

The Handwriting

LIKE most men, Claude took a different view of the events in the morning to that which he entertained over night.

Yesterday the surprises of the hour were concrete embodiments, each distinct and emphatic. Today they were merged in the general mass of contributory details that made up this most bewildering mystery.

That matters could not be allowed to rest in their present state was clear; that they would, in the natural course of things, reveal themselves more definitely, even if unaided, was also patent.

Mrs. Hillmer's partial admissions, her brother's evident knowledge of some salient features of the puzzle, that utterly strange letter in the admitted handwriting of Lady Dyke herself, and bearing the irrefutable testimony of dates stamped by the postofficeclerks, sensational elements, when brought into juxtaposition, could not avoid reaction into clearer phases.

Long experience in criminal investigation told him that, under certain circumstances, the best course of all was one of inactivity.

On the basis of the accepted truism in the affairs of many people that "letters left unanswered answer themselves," the barrister knew that there must be an outcome from the queer medley of occurrences at his residence on the Monday evening.

Reviewing the history of the past three months, several odd features stood out from the general jumble.

In the first place, he wondered why he had failed to deduce any pertinent fact from the manner in which Mrs. Hillmer's dining room was furnished on the occasion of his first visit to Harley Mansions.

He distinctly remembered noting his reception in an unusual room littered with unusual articles, when the luxurious and well-appointed suite of apartments was considered as a whole. It was suggested to him at the time that the drawing room, which he saw during his first visit, was dismantled earlier, but he did not connect this trivial incident with the feature in Mersmore's flat that he noted immediately—namely, the discrepancies between the arrangement of the sitting room and the other chambers in the place.

These things were immaterial now, but he indexed them as a guide for future use.

Lady Dyke's motive for that secret visit to Raleigh Mansions—that was the key to the mystery. But how to discover it? Who was her confidant? To whom could he turn for possible enlightenment? It was useless to broach the matter again to her husband. The baronet and his wife had been friends sharing the same menage rather than husband and wife. Her relatives had already been appealed to in vain. They knew nothing of the slightest value in this search for truth.

In this train of thought the name of Jane Harding cropped up. She was the personal maid of the deceased lady. She had sharp eyes and quick wits. Her queer antics shortly after the inquest were not forgotten. Here at least was a possibility of light if the girl would speak.

If she refused what could be her motive?

Hunting the Maid

Anyhow it was worth while to make a fresh effort. Early in the afternoon he called at the stage-door of the Jollity Theatre.

"Is Miss Marie le Marchant still employed here?" he asked the attendant.

"I dunno," was the careless answer.

"Well, think hard," said the barrister, laying a half-crown on the battered blotting-pad which is an indispensable part of the furniture in the letter bureau of a theatre.

"Yes, sir, I believe she is, but she has been away on a week's leave."

"Indeed. Has she returned?"

"I was off last night, sir, but if you will pardon me a moment I'll inquire from the man who took my place."

The stage-doorkeeper disappeared into the dark interior to return quickly with the information that Miss le Marchant had appeared as usual on Monday night.

"She was a day more than the last week, sir," added the man, "and I believe it wasn't a holiday, as she was a sort of flurried about it as if some one was ill."

"Thank you. Do you know where she lives?"

A momentary hesitation was soon softened by an easier crown.

"It's against the rules, sir. If you were to find yourself near Jubilee Buildings, Bloomsbury, about would get far out."

The information was sound. Miss Marie le Marchant's name was painted outside a second-floor flat.

Bruce knocked, and the door was opened by an elderly woman whom he had no difficulty in recognizing.

"Is your daughter in, Mrs. Harding?" he said.

For a moment she could not speak for surprise.

"Well, I never," she cried, "but London is a funny place. Do you know me, sir?"

"Any one would recognize you from your daughter, if they did not take you for her elder sister," he said. Bruce's smile was irresistible.

"My daughter is not in just now, sir," replied Mrs. Harding, "but I expect her in to tea almost immediately."

"Then may I come in and await her arrival?"

"Certainly, sir."

Once inside the flat he was impressed by the pretentious but fairly comfortable nature of its appointments; the ex-lady's maid's legacy must have been a good one to enable her to live in such style, as the poor pittance of a corpsbride would hardly pay the rent and taxes. Moreover, the presence of her mother in the establishment was a distinct factor in her favor.

Mrs. Harding had brought the visitor to the tiny sitting room. She seated herself near the window and resumed some sewing.

"Have you been long in town, Mrs. Harding?" he said, by way of being civil.

"In London, do you mean, sir? About two months. Ever since my daughter got along so well in her new profession. She's a good girl, is my daughter."

"Miss Harding is doing well on the stage, then?"

"Oh yes, sir. Why, she's been earning £6 a week, and last week she was sent for on a special engagement, which got her so well that she's going to buy me a new dress out of the money."

"Really," said the barrister, "you ought to be proud of her."

"I am," admitted the admiring mother. "If wish her brother, who went off and 'listed for a sojer, had turned out half as well."

Mrs. Harding nodded toward a photograph of a cavalry soldier in uniform on the mantel shelf, and Bruce rose to examine it, inwardly marveling at the intelligence he had just received. Was it reasonable that the girl could be the recipient of a legacy without the knowledge of her mother. In any case, why did she conceal the real nature of her earnings? The story about "£6 a week" was a myth.

Near to the portrait of the gallant hussar was a large plaque pre-sentment of Miss Marie herself, in all the glory of tights, wig and, make-up. Across it was written, in the best theatrical style, "Ever yours sincerely, Marie le Marchant." And no sooner had Bruce caught sight of the words that he almost shouted aloud in his amazement.

BRUCE AGAIN HUNTS FOR LADY DYKE'S MAID.

(Posed by William F. Carleton of "The Wall Street Girl" Company.

"Is Miss Marie Le Marchant still employed here?" he asked the attendant.

The handwriting was identical with that of Lady Dyke.

Gulping down his surprise, he discovered the signature with his eyes. The resemblance was truly remarkable. What on earth could be the explanation of this phenomenon.

"Your daughter is a remarkably nice writer, Mrs. Harding," he said, turning the photograph toward her.

"Yes," said the complacent mother, "she taught herself when—before she went on the stage. She was always a clever girl, and when she grew up she improved herself. I wasn't able to afford her much schooling when she was young."

"I have seldom seen a nicer hand," he went on. "Have you any other specimens of her writing? I would like to see them if they are not private."

The smooth surface of the photograph might perhaps lend a deceptive fluency to the pen. He wanted to make quite sure that he was not mistaken.

"Oh, yes. She's just copying out the part of Ophelia in 'Hamlet.' And she acts it beautiful."

Mrs. Harding handed over a large MS. book, and there, written on the first page, was the name of the luckless woman whose fatal passion has moved millions to tears.

He admired Miss Marie le Marchant's efforts in the matter of self-culture, but he was determined once for all to wrest from her some explanation of her actions.

The turn of a key in the outer door caused him to throw aside the coveted "part," and the young lady herself entered. A few weeks of stage experience had given her a more stylish appearance. There was a "professional" touch in the arrangement of her hat and the droop of her skirt.

She knew him instantly, and listened with evident anger to her mother's explanation that "this gentleman has just called to see you, dear."

"All right, mother," she cried. "I see it is Mr. Bruce. Will you get tea ready while I talk with him? I shall be ready in two minutes." This with a defiant look at the visitor.

When Mrs. Harding quitted the room her daughter said in the crisp accents of ill-temper.

"What do you want with me, now?"

"I want to ask why you dared to write a letter to Sir Charles Dyke in the name of your dead mistress."

The answer was so direct, the tone was so menacing, its assumption of absolute and unquestioned knowledge so complete, that for the moment Marie le Marchant's assurance failed her.

She stood like one petrified, with eyes dilated and breast heaving. At last she managed to ejaculate:

"I—I—why do you ask me that question?"

"Because I must have the truth from you this time. You are playing a very dangerous game."

That he was right he was sure beyond a doubt. It was impossible for the girl to deny it with those piercing eyes fixed on hers, and seeming to read the secrets of her heart.

Yet she was plucky enough. Although she was confused and on the point of bursting into tears, she snapped viciously:

"I will tell you nothing. Go away."

"You are obstinate, I know," said Bruce, "but I must warn you that you are playing with edged tools. You should not imagine that you can trifle with murder. What is your motive for deliberately trying to conceal Lady Dyke's death? If you do not answer me you may be asked the question by a court of law."

"You have no right to come here and bother me," she retorted.

"I am not here to annoy you. I come rather as a friend, to appeal to you not to run the grave risk of keeping from the authorities information which they ought to possess."

"What information?"

"The reasons which led you to leave Sir Charles Dyke's house so suddenly, the sources from which you obtain your money, paid to you, doubtless, to secure your silence; the motive which impelled you to use your ability to imitate her ladyship's handwriting in order to spread the false news that she is alive. This is the information needed, and your wilful refusal to give it constitutes a grave indictment."

"I don't care that for you, Mr. Bruce," replied the girl, her face set now in a scarlet temper, while she snapped her fingers to emphasize the words. "You can do and say what you like, I will tell you nothing."

A Stubborn Girl

"You cannot deny you wrote that letter to Sir Charles Dyke last Saturday?"

"I am waiting for my tea. Sorry I can't ask you to join me."

"Your flippancy will not avail you. See, here is the letter itself—your own production—written on paper of which you have quite a quantity in this very room."

The shot was a bold one, and it very nearly hit the mark. She was staggered, almost subdued by this melodramatic production of the original, and his clever guess at the existence of similar note paper in the house.

But her dogged temperament saved her. Jane Harding was British, notwithstanding her penchant for a French-sounding name, and she would have died sooner than beat a retreat.

"I will thank you to leave me alone, Mr. Bruce," she said.

There was nothing for it but to retire as gracefully as possible, but the barrister was more than satisfied with the result of his visit. He had now established beyond a shadow of doubt that for some reason which he could not fathom the exlady's maid not only knew of her mistress' death, but wished to conceal it.

This desire, too, had the essential merits of every other branch of the inquiry: it grew in maturity day after day when Lady Dyke was actually killed. What did it all mean?

From Bloomsbury he strolled west to Portman square, and found Sir Charles on the point of going for a drive in the park.

He briefly told him of his discovery.

The baronet at first was skeptical. "Do you mean to say, Claude," he cried, fretfully, "that I do not know my wife's writing when I see it?"

"You may think you do, but when another person can imitate it exactly, of course, you may be deceived. Besides, if this girl, as is probable, was helped in her education by your wife what is more likely than that Jane Harding should seek to copy that which she would consider the ideal of excellence? Don't harbor any delusions in the matter, Dyke. The letter you received on Monday morning was written by Jane Harding. I am sure of that from her manner no less than from the accidental resemblance of the two styles of handwriting. What I could not find out was her motive for the deceit."

"It is a queer business altogether," said Sir Charles wearily; "I wish it were ended."

Big Slump in London Copper Felt by Shares

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, July 9.—Midday—The sensational break in the London copper metal market was a depressing factor upon the prices of copper issues in the local and the New York markets. Trading at the Boston opening was fairly active and orders included about everything in the copper line on the list. The market grew a little quieter after the first flurry. Issues which sustained the most losses included Lake, Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, Osceola, Mohawk and Allouez. U. S. Smelting, Butte & Superior, Ray Consolidated, Isle Royale, Mason Valley, Shannon, North Butte and Hranby also sold lower.

It was called that near the close of the New York markets. Trading at the Boston opening was fairly active and orders included about everything in the copper line on the list. The market grew a little quieter after the first flurry. Issues which sustained the most losses included Lake, Calumet & Arizona, Calumet & Hecla, Osceola, Mohawk and Allouez. U. S. Smelting, Butte & Superior, Ray Consolidated, Isle Royale, Mason Valley, Shannon, North Butte and Hranby also sold lower.

In the New York market towards noon there was a rally in rails and Steel, Atchison and Union Pacific were among issues to advance.

At one time during the morning session the London copper market spot was selling as a decline of £4, 3s. 6d from the closing of yesterday, there having been a subsequent rally of £1.

New York Market Is Weak.

The New York market opened weak and copper shares led the decline. The big drop in copper metal price in London was the cause. When the New York market opened Amalgamated declined ¾ to 80¼, while losses of ¾ were sustained in Anaconda, American Smelting and Utah.

Tobacco stocks drooped. American Tobacco fell 4 points to 258. Steel common opened ¼ off, but later rallied and not only regained the loss, but advanced ¾.

Canadian Pacific, which was under pressure in London, fell ¾ in New York.

Pennsylvania and Reading were unchanged. Union Pacific was off ¼.

The Curb was weak.

Americans in London had a harder tone, followed by a reaction, with trading very light in volume.

Slump in Copper Metals.

There was a big slump in the price of copper metal when the market opened in London, spot being quoted at £72 12s. 6d. off £2 3s. 9d., and futures at £73 3s. 9d., off £3 10s. The market was very weak and there was heavy selling.

In regard to the decline it is said: "The sensational break in copper warrants in London is generally credited by the leading copper interests in the United States to the liquidation of overextended speculation in the metal. It is also believed that interests who have been bearing stocks in this country have been selling their copper warrants for the effect this would have upon the copper share market.

"It is claimed by the larger producers that the actual position of the industry is strong and that when consumers begin to buy again they will find it necessary to ask the prices asked by producers."

It is said that small dealers sold copper electrolytic today as low as 17¾ cents a pound. Big producers maintained the nominal price of 17¾, but they are selling no metal.

The Boston News Bureau says regarding the break in the London market: "Private advices brought no details as to the cause for the drastic break in quotation of a leading New York producer that the London Metal Exchange, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, claiming that a hundred thousand tons of hidden stocks were in existence, was largely responsible for the severe slump abroad."

It was said in New York that bull speculators had done some heavy realizing and utterly demoralized the warrants market there. It is claimed that the foreign interests abroad are not disturbed over the liquidation and think it will bring about a healthier condition.

Financial News in Brief.

It is said that a majority of the strikers at the Franklin property in Houghton desire to return to work and that it is probable that it will be settled.

In Wall Street it is reported that heavy selling by insiders is responsible for the slump in tobacco stocks. To some observers the decline indicates a short interest in the issues.

Above public utility stocks are used in building the 10,000 cars railroads in this country will need. The car shortage is said to be one of the largest known. Their car orders will aggregate 4,000.

The banking situation in New York is due to the $50,000,000 bond issue of the Panama Canal the first of this month and it is predicted that the banks will be easy for funds. The Clearing House statement of Saturday last showed that eighteen institutions had a deficit with their legal requirements, but only the First National reported a shortage in reserve, but it exceeded the actual deficit reported by the Clearing House.

The Journal of Commerce prints that five Jones brothers, first vice president of the Chase National Bank, have profited $114,417,000 as compared with $126,691,750 in the corresponding period last year.

It is said that the exportation of gold from New York to Paris will cease for a while, but it is also understood that France is interested in some more of the yellow metal in this country as soon as the Bank of France reduces its rate to 3 per cent.

Earnings of the Illinois Central for June show that the fault of the road's management is an improvement in its business was justified.

As the Anaconda dividend rate was not increased, no further increase in that of Amalgamated is expected when the directors of the latter company meet next week. Anaconda directors will meet on Wednesday next. Of the current quarter's dividend of $1.50 per share on the 1,358,202 shares of the 4,852,500 Anaconda outstanding and not owned by the trust, $2,037,303 is due the trust.

The latest estimate of the sum needed to reorganize Pere Marquette is $5,000,000, and three may be an assessment. Holders of the existing 4 per cent. bonds have again been asked by their committee to deposit their bonds with the Central Union Trust Company of New York or the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston.

It is reported that Western steel mills are now refusing practically all new business because of their sold-out condition. Some are booked well into 1913.

In the stock market opinions of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation for the second quarter are that $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 of unfilled orders will be on the books. North Dakota is the only new banking state to be organized since May 10, with 300,000 now, and were valued at $1,000,247, which is a new high record. The United States has 7,474 national banks.

Since March 21 the total decrease in the New York State banks have increased $18,900,197.

$5,775 PAID FOR A TEN-INCH TURNER

LONDON, July 9.—The sum of $5,775 was the highest price paid at the second day's sale of the John Edward Taylor collection of pictures and drawings at Christie's. For that sum Gibbs, an art dealer, acted for the President, it was learned today. Mr. Taft decided two months ago that as soon as the convention was over he would remove several bureau chiefs whose loyalty he had reason to question.

VALENTINE ASKED TO RESIGN BY TAFT

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The resignation of Robert G. Valentine, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, which was placed in the hands of the President some days ago, was not voluntarily submitted, but was requested by the President, it was learned today.

DEATHS

FRANK W. FOSTER, head of the Foster Manufacturing Company, a member of the first two city governments of Melrose, and prominent in Masonic organizations of that city, is dead at his home on West Emerson street, Melrose. He was sixty years old.

CORNELIA A. JOHNSON, wife of Charles H. Johnson, is dead at her home at 1031 Washington street, Newtonville.

AMUSEMENTS FOR BOSTON THIS WEEK

Another attractive bill was presented to the patrons of B. F. Keith's Theatre, for in addition to "The Meisteringers," now in their second successful week, Harry Beresford and company were seen "In New York." Dorothy Brenner and Joseph Ratliffe, late of Lew Fields's "Never Homes," gave a delightful sketch, and there was an abundance of other clever entertainers.

"In Old New York," an episode of the East Side, in a true life setting, brought together a captive company, comprising Harry Beresford, John De Wesse, Harry W. Hall, Fred Mish, Hattie Carmontelle and Eta Marsh, in a playlet of real human interest. It was the story of an East Side youth sentenced for another's crime, finding himself through his abiding affection for a girl of the tenements. Of course they went away and were married, but if it hadn't been for the ring and necklace given by the philosophical and self-ascribing sign-painter, played by Mr. Beresford, their happiness would have been long delayed.

"At the Flower Stand" was the title of the dainty bit presented by the clever little Miss Dorothy Brenner and Joseph Ratliffe, and they were given a hearty reception.

The "Meisteringers"—the Hyvard, Schubert and Weber quartet—in their "Camping Out" production, were in excellent voice, as usual, and won new laurels. Other numbers were Juggling Nelson, the Sutcliffe Family, Scottish singers, dancers and acrobats; Newkirk and Evans sisters, in a musical skit; Apdale's animals, equestrian dogs, bears and monkeys, that amused children and grown-ups, and Leo Carrillo, in a new monologue. Pathé's Weekly was an entertaining and instructive as ever.

Orpheum Theatre.

The new vaudeville bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday was the kind that made you forget the high temperature. There was no much going on that one had no time to think of the weather. Besides several new vaudeville features, the motion picture list contained many attractive subjects.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Pat White and the Violet Mascotte burlesquers contributed fun and music at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. The program was new.

Paragon Park.

The cabaret in the Palm Garden at Paragon Park continues as the main attraction at Nantasket. The new program this week proved one of the liveliest of the year. Manager Dodge reports that already he has far outstripped the enormous business done at the park last season. He says breaking records is becoming a habit at Paragon.

Norumbega Park.

There was a real Summer show at Norumbega Park yesterday, when the first performances of "The Maid of Japan" were given in the open air theatre. This is one of the most pretentious of musical entertainments, and with J. K. Murray and Clara Lane as the stars the performance was assured of artistic as well as of sound vocal quality.

Hub Theatre.

New pictures and new vaudeville features made up the bill at the Hub Theatre yesterday. Special features made the program attractive.

Scenic Temple

There were vaudeville features, new motion pictures and an orchestral concert by Leona Hoe's orchestra at the Scenic Temple, yesterday.

Bass Point.

The new week at Bass Point found bigger crowds than ever at the hotels. Not only is Bass Point one of the best spots on the coast to find a shore dinner, but there are many other attractions to lure the sweltering excursionist.

Provincetown Trips

The steamer Dorothy Bradford carried a full passenger list to Provincetown yesterday. The quaint, historic town on the tip of Cape Cod is one of the most attractive spots on the Atlantic coast.

Fishing Trips

A boat load of fishermen visited the fishing grounds yesterday on the steamer Satellite.

Shows that Remain.

"Little Miss Fix-It" continues at the Tremont Theatre.

The Rainey African Hunt pictures began a new week at the Park last evening.

The Durbar in Kinemacolor has entered upon a new week at Tremont Temple.

Globe Theatre.

Lively vaudeville continued at the Globe Theatre yesterday. Heading the bill was the Paul Azard trio of acrobats, one of the best known and most popular teams now playing the two-a-day houses. There were a dozen other attractive features.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

The victorious Stutz car that made such a cleanup at Old Orchard events, will be on hand to show this racing car to visitors. The Stutz has been in the local market less than a year, yet it met with such unprecedented success that Manager M. F. Chase was forced to seek a new location. His new salesroom opened yesterday and the racing car was inspected by a lot of automobile fans.

The Stutz Motor Car Company has a service station on Hickerstaff street, within a stone's throw of the new salesroom. Manager Chase announces that he will inaugurate several branches of service formerly impossible owing to the lack of accommodation.

The Buick Company will move from the Motor Mart on August 1 and will occupy a site at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Newbury street. This is one of the most desirable locations in the city, situated as it is on a widely traveled thoroughfare.

The policy of the new manager is to get rid of the cars now on hand so that when the new salesroom is done there will be plenty of room for the 1913 models. There are some thirty used cars of various makes that the manager of the local branch is about to dispose of at low prices to make quick sales. They comprise touring, runabouts, pot touring, surrey and limousine body types and some of the best known cars in the market.

* * *

Harry Cobb, at the wheel of a Jackson, drove a fine race in the 100-mile event at Old Orchard and deserves a great deal of praise for finishing third under the conditions that existed. He was pitted against higher powered and higher selling price cars but the pinky Jackson driver pushed his car to the limit and was in the money despite the fact that many fans did not look for him to show.

All the sweet girl graduates of the Trenton, N. J., High School envy Miss Rose Kohn, one of their number. When Miss Kohn finished her course in June her father's Commencement present was a Studebaker "20" automobile.

Equal Justice Demanded for Striker and Strike-Breaker

The Attention of the JUDGES OF THE LOWER COURTS and of the POLICE is Called to This Matter—Any Other Treatment Breeds Greater Disorder.

Recent occurrences in connection with the strike on the Boston Elevated Railway necessitate a demand by the public upon the judges of the lower courts, particularly, and the police for EQUAL JUSTICE in the treatment of strikers and strike-breakers.

This newspaper believes that any man who commits a breach of the peace—who commits an assault on a person or who destroys property—should be punished severely under the law.

In every attack upon a car and in every fight between strikers and men who are at work, passengers, who have nothing whatever to do with the strike, are endangered if not actually injured. From this standpoint alone it behooves the police to be on the alert in arresting offenders and the courts to be alive in meting out proper punishment.

But there must be no INJUSTICE in this matter.

The judge who punishes a striker more severely than he does a strike-breaker for the same offence is not only violating his oath of office but is sowing seeds that can only bring forth greater trouble in the future.

Discrimination in dealing out justice is a PROSTITUTION OF THE COURT. IT BREEDS ANARCHY. IT IS NOT ONLY UNJUST, IT IS DANGEROUS.

The AMERICAN insists that the men on both sides of the regrettable controversy be TREATED FAIRLY by both the police and the courts.

Let Us Have Peace

The Striking Employes of the Elevated Only Ask the Right to Deal with the Stockholders Just as the Stockholders Deal with Them. They Want a Charter as the Stockholders Have a Charter, and They Want an Executive Committee as the Stockholders Have a Board of Directors.

The controversy between the Boston Elevated and its employes, now on a strike, is reaching a situation which threatens serious injury to the business interests of Boston.

The right to organize is regarded among workingmen and in nearly all walks of life as almost an elementary, indefeasible right in our present industrial system.

When the Boston Elevated Railway Company refused to assent to the organization of these men into a union, it was denying to its employes a right which is universally recognized. It was setting its face against the tendency of the times and against the judgment of the most far-seeing men.

If the demand of the employes to organize were a novel proposition; if other street railways in the country or even in Massachusetts had not recognized the union of their employes, there might be some justification for the obstinate refusal of the Elevated to compromise this strike. But the contrary is true.

The Boston Elevated Railway ought to remember that it is a public service corporation; that its first duty is public service. The Elevated ought not to jeopardize the public interest by provoking a general strike and paralyzing business in this city.

The members of the labor organization are so wrought up by the persistent denial of what they consider to be a fundamental right of working men and by the unequal administration of justice in some of our lower courts that they appear to be ready to make any sacrifice to win this strike.

If a general strike is ordered the suffering public will be justly indignant with the management of the Boston Elevated Railway.

Let us have peace. The men only ask the right to deal with the stockholders just as the stockholders deal with them. They want a charter as the stockholders have a charter, and they want an Executive Committee as the stockholders have a Board of Directors.

Union on both sides gives a balance of power which in the long run will make for the safety of our institutions.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

NEED OF AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I note in a recent article that freight rates between United States ports and South America, Argentine and Brazil have increased 200 per cent.

This is true and due, as the writer says, to the arbitrary tariffs imposed by the British shipping trust, which not only controls the monopoly of transportation between North and South America, but the monopoly of the world's ocean-carrying trade.

Americans pay tribute unjustly to this British shipping trust of $300,000,000 in the nature of freight charges.

We haven't a single American owned or controlled ship engaged in the North and South American transportation service.

We are completely at the mercy of our commercial rivals, who make the tariffs and operate in the interests of European commerce as against American commerce.

We have a reciprocity agreement with Brazil. She grants us 20 per cent. preferentials on nineteen articles manufactured in this country and 30 per cent. on American flour. Yet with this advantage we sold Brazil last year $23,000,000 only as against $125,000,000 we bought from her.

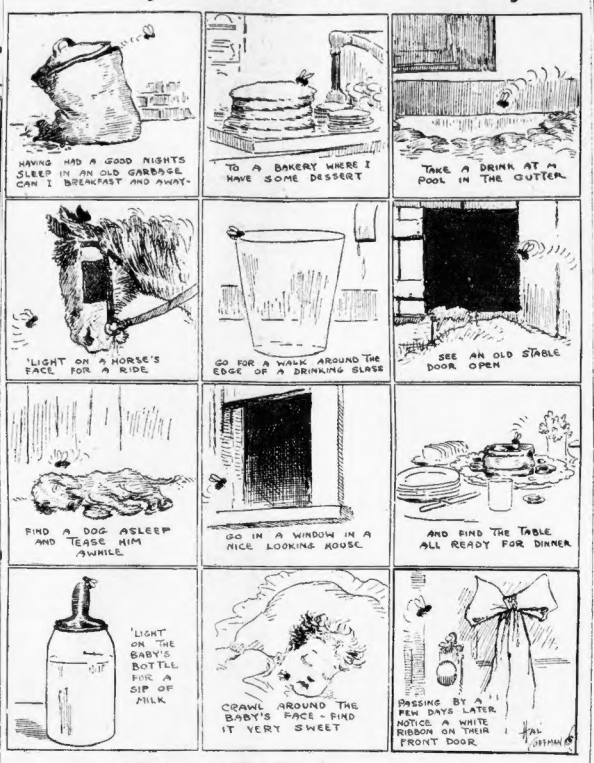
Why? Because the British shipping trust, upon which we are solely dependent to carry our commerce absorbs the preferentials in the freight rates.

There is a $100,000,000 trade balance against us with Brazil—$100,000,000 in gold which Brazil spends in Europe for manufactured products which she would spend in America if we had American transportation lines operated in the interest of American commerce.

Of what value are reciprocity treaties without our own national delivery wagons to transport our products across the seas in competition with other nations? I have just returned from South America and know conditions prevailing there. The people want to be enlightened.

SIDNEY STORY.

A Day in the Life of a Fly



HAVING HAD A GOOD NIGHTS SLEEP IN AN OLD GARBAGE CAN I BREAKFAST AND AWAY-
TO A BAKERY WHERE I HAVE SOME DESSERT
TAKE A DRINK AT M POOL IN THE GUTTER
LIGHT ON A HORSE'S FACE FOR A RIDE
GO FOR A WALK AROUND THE EDGE OF A DRINKING GLASS
SEE AN OLD STABLE DOOR OPEN
FIND A DOG ASLEEP AND TEASE HIM AWHILE
GO IN A WINDOW IN A NICE LOOKING HOUSE
AND FIND THE TABLE ALL READY FOR DINNER
LIGHT ON THE BABY'S BOTTLE FOR A SIP OF MILK
CRAWL AROUND THE BABYS FACE - FIND IT VERY SWEET
PASSING BY A FEW DAYS LATER NOTICE A WHITE RIBBON ON THEIR FRONT DOOR.

Swat the fly! Scientists say it is deadlier than the tiger or the cobra. Its name, physicians suggest, should be changed from "house fly" to "typhoid fly." Thousands of cases of typhoid and other intestinal diseases are annually attributed to the fly. Laying 120 eggs at a time, one fly will be responsible for millions of descendants in the course of a single season. Swat the fly!

To Marry or Not to Marry—Question for the Individual Only

By DOROTHY DIX

A SENSIBLE, level-headed girl writes me the following letter:

"I am twenty-six years old, in business and earn a good salary. I am successful in my occupation and much liked by my employer and fellow workmen, but I am not pretty, and, therefore, do not attract men, although I have a host of friends of my own sex. Now, my mother is very much worried because I am not married and harasses me by continually urging matrimony upon me. She seems to think it little short of a disgrace for a girl of my age not to be married.

I have no scruples against marrying. In fact, I should like to marry if the right man came along, and there are times when I heartily wish that I had a husband and a little home of my own and the independence they give a woman, but I certainly have scruples against marrying a man unless I love him.

Fears Constant Nagging Will Drive Her to Matrimonial State

So far as I can see I am in no way an object of pity, and I enjoy my work, make a comfortable income and have all the privileges of the bachelor maid, yet my mother makes my life a burden to me with her nagging about my marrying, and all of my girl friends who are married or engaged look at me with contempt and compassion and "poor Mary" me for being single until I sometimes feel that I will be driven into matrimony in self-defense.

What do you think of it? Is there any reason a self-supporting young woman should marry unless she wants to?

The situation in which my correspondent finds herself is one in which millions of other women have been plunged before her, but for them there was no way out, while for her there is the open door if she only has the courage to use it. The woman of the past whose family and friends decided that it was time for her to be settled in life, was compelled to leap from the home frying pan, when it got too hot to be comfortable, into the fire of an undesired marriage.

But the young woman of today who is self-supporting is driven to no such desperate alternative. If her friends and parents make her feel that she encumbers the family hearthstone, all she needs do is to pack her trunk and go. And if she is wise she does so, instead of letting herself be fretted to death by the continual interference of others in an affair so purely personal as marriage. Not even a mother has a right to put a finger in that pie. It's hands off for everybody except the individual concerned in matters of the heart.

Why mothers, who presumably love their daughters and have their interests at heart, should be so crazy for their girls to marry is one of the mysteries past finding out. Certainly few women have been so blessed in their own marriages as to lead them to think matrimony an elysium. On the contrary, most of them have found it a hard road to travel, full of disillusions, and disappointments, and privations and sorrows and tears; yet, in spite of their own experience and the observation that they have fared no worse than the great majority of wives and mothers they see about them they are eager to get their daughters feet on this thorny path.

So we see mothers urging their daughters to marry, and so anxious to see them married they do not look too particularly at the man. We see them so afraid their daughters won't marry that they plunge little, young, unfit girls into matrimony, and when a girl does have enough sense not to take the first man who proposes to her, but waits to pick and choose around among men until she can find what she wants in a husband, we observe her mother getting as fidgety as an old hen who is trying to cluck and shoo her chick into the coop at night, fearful lest she might get left out of the fold.

Of course, where a girl is dependent on her family, it is easy to see where her mother might want to shunt the burden of her support on some man, but where a young woman earns her own bread and butter, and cake, and even contributes to her parent's larder, there is no possible excuse for her mother to marry off.

The only explanation that can be offered of the mother's attitude is that she belongs to the back-number women, who believe that for a woman not to marry indicates that she is lacking in personal attractiveness, and that she holds to the ancient and fallacious theory that marriage is a nice, easy, genteel sort of a job.

The modern woman has disproved both of these theories. Nowadays, there is an aristocracy of celibacy among women, and for a girl to remain single does not prove that she was shy on charms, but that she was long on discretion and wisdom. So far from pitying the old maid, she is far more likely to be looked on with envy.

Taking them by-and-large, the unmarried women are better off than the married women. There are more women with good jobs than good husbands. The unmarried women are better dressed, younger looking, more cheerful, and contented than their married sisters. It is the wives, and not the old maids, who weep on your neck, and come to you with the sad, sad story of their lives. So no woman who is anxious for her daughter's happiness need indger her into matrimony.

As for marriage offering a soft snap to a woman, it is only the very few women who marry rich men who get even physical ease. No woman in an office, or a store, or a factory, works one-tenth so hard as the wife of a poor man. No woman, no matter how ill-paid, gets so little for her labor as the wife and mother, and why the woman who has been through this treadmill wants to push her daughter into it is something past comprehension.

Cruel to Force Girl to Altar Steps Unless She Really Loves

There is just one thing and one thing only, that makes marriage worth while, and that is love—a love so great and overwhelming that it robs sacrifice of its sting, labor of its weariness, and makes a woman glad to give all and do all for the sake of the man she worships. Unless a girl feels this way toward a man, she is wrong and foolish to marry him, and when she does feel this way she won't need her mother to urge and push her into matrimony.

And when she doesn't feel this way it is a hard and cruel thing of her mother to try and force on her brow a wreath of orange blossoms that are full of thorns.

Amiability as a Womanly Virtue

—AND—

Her Power to Make Others Happy

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

LONG ago amiability was regarded as one of the cardinal virtues of woman.

Then came some writer (perhaps it was Fanny Fern) who set the fashion of ridiculing the amiable woman.

She was represented as a placid, unemotional, good-natured creature, stupid and uninteresting, or as a spineless type of femininity—a human door-mat.

Yet were I a man the first quality I would seek in a wife would be an amiable disposition.

And it would be most difficult to find.

Think over all the women friends and acquaintances you have, and you will be surprised to discover how few can be called amiable.

Webster describes an amiable disposition as a "lovableness."

And that is precisely what it is.

There is a woman of great brilliancy; her mental powers are large, her wit scintillates, her accomplishments are varied; but these are not what keep her a favorite in every circle she enters or make her an adorable guest in every household fortunate enough to obtain her presence.

It is her never-failing amiability and happy good cheer which do this.

There is another woman who has limited mentality; she has no striking qualities of mind, save kindness of heart and amiability: yet she is beloved by a large circle, and popular with men and women, because of the agreeable impression she leaves. Amiability is like a sweet perfume; and one who possesses it need not converse brilliantly or display varied accomplishments to please.

Whatever your type may be, then, young lady, whether you are bright or dull, pretty or plain, young—or not so young—rich or poor, cultivate the great and beautiful virtue of amiability.

Take a happy view of life, of people, of the world.

Whatever occurs, accept the situation with serenity, with a laugh; or if tears will come, smile through them. Do not be critical or analytic.

Have a good word for everybody; see the humorous side of daily life. And be tolerant, forgiving and patient with people.

If you are born with this tendency, you are far more fortunate than if you have been born heir to millions and irritable nerves.

The irritable woman, the woman who is easily upset, easily wounded, easily discouraged, and easily made unhappy, often deceives herself that she is of a peculiarly "refined" and "sensitive" nature and that she feels the hurts of life more keenly than coarser-fibred beings.

Instead, she is merely indulging disagreeable tendencies; she is self-centred; she is narrow-minded; she is jealous and envious ofttimes without the least suspicion of the fact, and she has put her own nerves on edge by a wrong process of thinking.

One born with an unfortunate tendency in these directions will find the effort to cultivate amiability hard.

But it is worth the labor. The woman who possesses or achieves amiability gives more pleasure to the world than any mere woman of wealth, power or genius who is not amiable.

There is the memory of one amiable woman which is going down to the third and fourth generations and is making every one who prides herself upon any kinship anxious to perpetuate and emulate that ancestral quality.

There is the memory of another brilliant and beautiful woman, who was distinctly unamiable, which is marring and blighting the lives of many descendants.

Amiability is not only for today; it is for tomorrow and the day after and for eternity.

For the habit of the mind is making eternity.

Pray much, and pray ever to be helped to develop an amiable and lovable disposition.

But strive while you pray.

And work always.

The Governors of five of the New England States have agreed to edit the Sunday AMERICAN for five successive Sundays during July and August.

The Governors will take their turns as editors in this order:

On Sunday, July 14, Governor Frederick W. Plaisted of Maine.

On Sunday, July 21, Governor Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire.

On Sunday, July 28, Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts.

On Sunday, August 4, Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island.

On Sunday, August 11, Governor John A. Mead of Vermont.

In inviting the Governors of New England to supplant the regular editor on the five Sundays named, the AMERICAN suggested that each prepare a leading editorial on some subject of vital interest to the State he represents, and to select as far as practicable the news to be presented on that day.

These five "Governors' Editions" will present to the people of the New England States the most important matters that concern the general welfare.

One Governor regards good roads as a most important subject for discussion, and another public regulation of railroad lines serving New England.

Governor Bass in accepting the AMERICAN'S invitation writes:

To interest the Governors in New England journalism is certainly a new departure and one with which I thoroughly sympathize. The AMERICAN has always co-operated with the men responsible for the progressive movement in my State and it is always a pleasure for me to co-operate with it in so far as I can.

Governor Foss in his note of acceptance writes:

I shall be very glad to furnish the leading editorial for the Sunday AMERICAN of July 28, and will probably take as my subject "Public regulation of the railroad lines serving New England; why past Legislatures have refused to grant it, and how to get it this Fall."

Governor Pothier writes:

My contribution may not be a message to the citizens of New England, but I will try to bring to their attention matters which I shall consider of interest to them.

Governor Plaisted writes:

I should be pleased to comply with the request contained in your letter.

Governor Mead writes:

I assure you it will be a pleasure to accept your invitation, and upon my return to Rutland (Governor Mead wrote from Chicago) I will be pleased to give the matter attention. We will arrange the subject then.
